Bettendorf High School
Bettendorf, Iowa

A Classic

Every year it's the same old thing. Another football season, another winter break, another set of tests, another prom, another graduation . . . nothing ever changes in a school system.

If you've felt like this, you couldn't be more wrong. There will never be another year exactly like this one.

This was the year Bettendorf beat Central in football, the physical education department finally got new gym suits, and both the boys' and girls' basketball teams were rated among the top five teams in the state. This was the year the Growl and the Beacon changed format, Spirit Unlimited was started, and the drama department put on the most expensive, expansive musical ever.

(lower left) Despite the over-crowded conditions in the industrial arts department, students flocked to the area. Here a student practices his welding technique.

Girls came to school wearing cowl necks and the men's wear look. Guys wore corduroy jeans and V-neck sweaters. This was the end of a decade. Students suffered after the drinking age was changed back to 19; the world stood shocked at the tragedy in Guyana; and a Dec. 2 ice storm ground the Quad Cities to a halt.

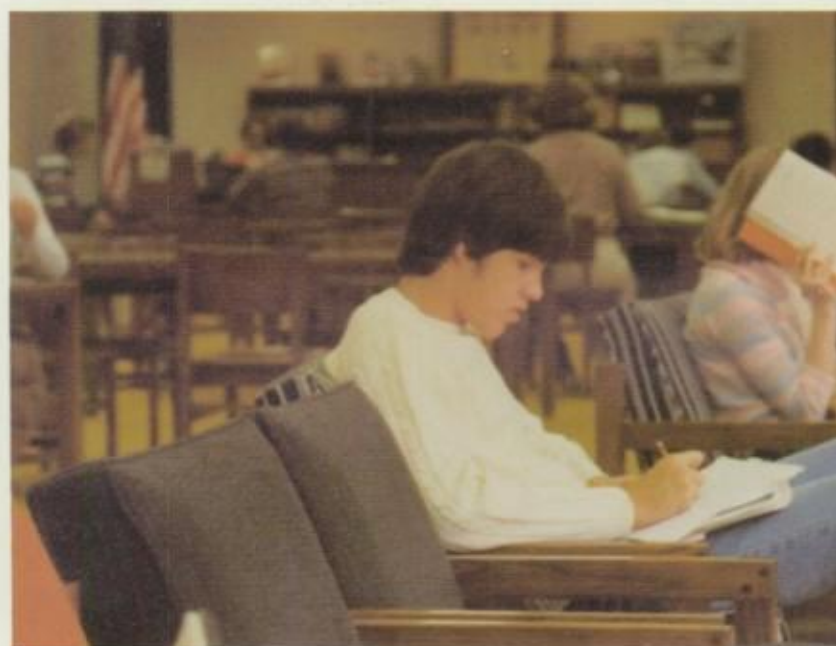

There will always be another year, another Senior Class, another student body, but this year was ours. It was special because it will never happen exactly this way again. Like a bottle of vintage wine or a rare first edition or a Model T ... this year — it was "A Classic."

While most people's week add up to seven days, us hardworking pupils and teachers shorten it to five. We go through a cycle, sorta like a washing machine, with each step of the way in the same order, at the same time, and in the same way.

MONDAY: The worst day of the week! You barely drag yourself out of bed, you trudge yourself from the warmth of your bed to your first period class remembering that you have a 20 page report due, that you haven't even started. (Toni Phelps)

TUESDAY: This day is sort of a nowhere day. It's only the second day of the week. Nobody cares about Tuesday, it's too much like Monday. (Jan Kovarick)

WEDNESDAY: By the middle of the week things are beginning to look up. Your mind and body are functioning and you're actually able to get some work done. (Angela Stouth)

THURSDAY: It's almost over!! You actually are beginning to smile and even recognize your friends when you pass them in the hall. Some students begin their partying on Thursday. Why not get an early start? (Debbie Griggs)

FRIDAY: By now the whole school is zooey, a sigh of relief comes from everyone. Conversation centers around parties and the weekend activities, and there is at least one wild and crazy person in the room. (Caren Armburst and Mark Kelly)

An air of excitement

Senior Jan McClurg gets into the spirit of things by helping paint the Spirit Unlimited banner.

Doc "Dracula" Meador emcees the winter sports pep aud.

"Spirit Unlimited" is one of the newest and peppiest clubs to hit Bettendorf High School (BHS) in a long time.

Besides being something new it is also something old. Its former name was Pep Club, but since the new name was used it has enlarged in membership. The tally of the membership has gone up to 447. Not too bad a number, and there are always new members signing up.

Since the group has been organized, they have been trying to spread more school spirit throughout the school. To prove it they have backed the Bulldogs in their games and made it possible for fan buses to transport people to and from these contests.

"Spirit" is not only an organized club but it's each and every individual. Kids decorate lockers for their friends' birthdays. They also help decorate for the holidays. Every student at BHS is filled with spirit of their own. But "Spirit" is trying to bring all these students together and to show it to other schools.

All in all, BHS has got spirit in its clubs, faculty and students.

Spirit Unlimited members prove they're the most spirited in the state of Iowa by supporting all the sports at BHS.

Off the field the football team still shows their spirit by wearing their "Year of the Dog" T-shirts during a pep rally.

Mike Williams leads the boy's basketball team through the spirit banner during the pep aud for winter.

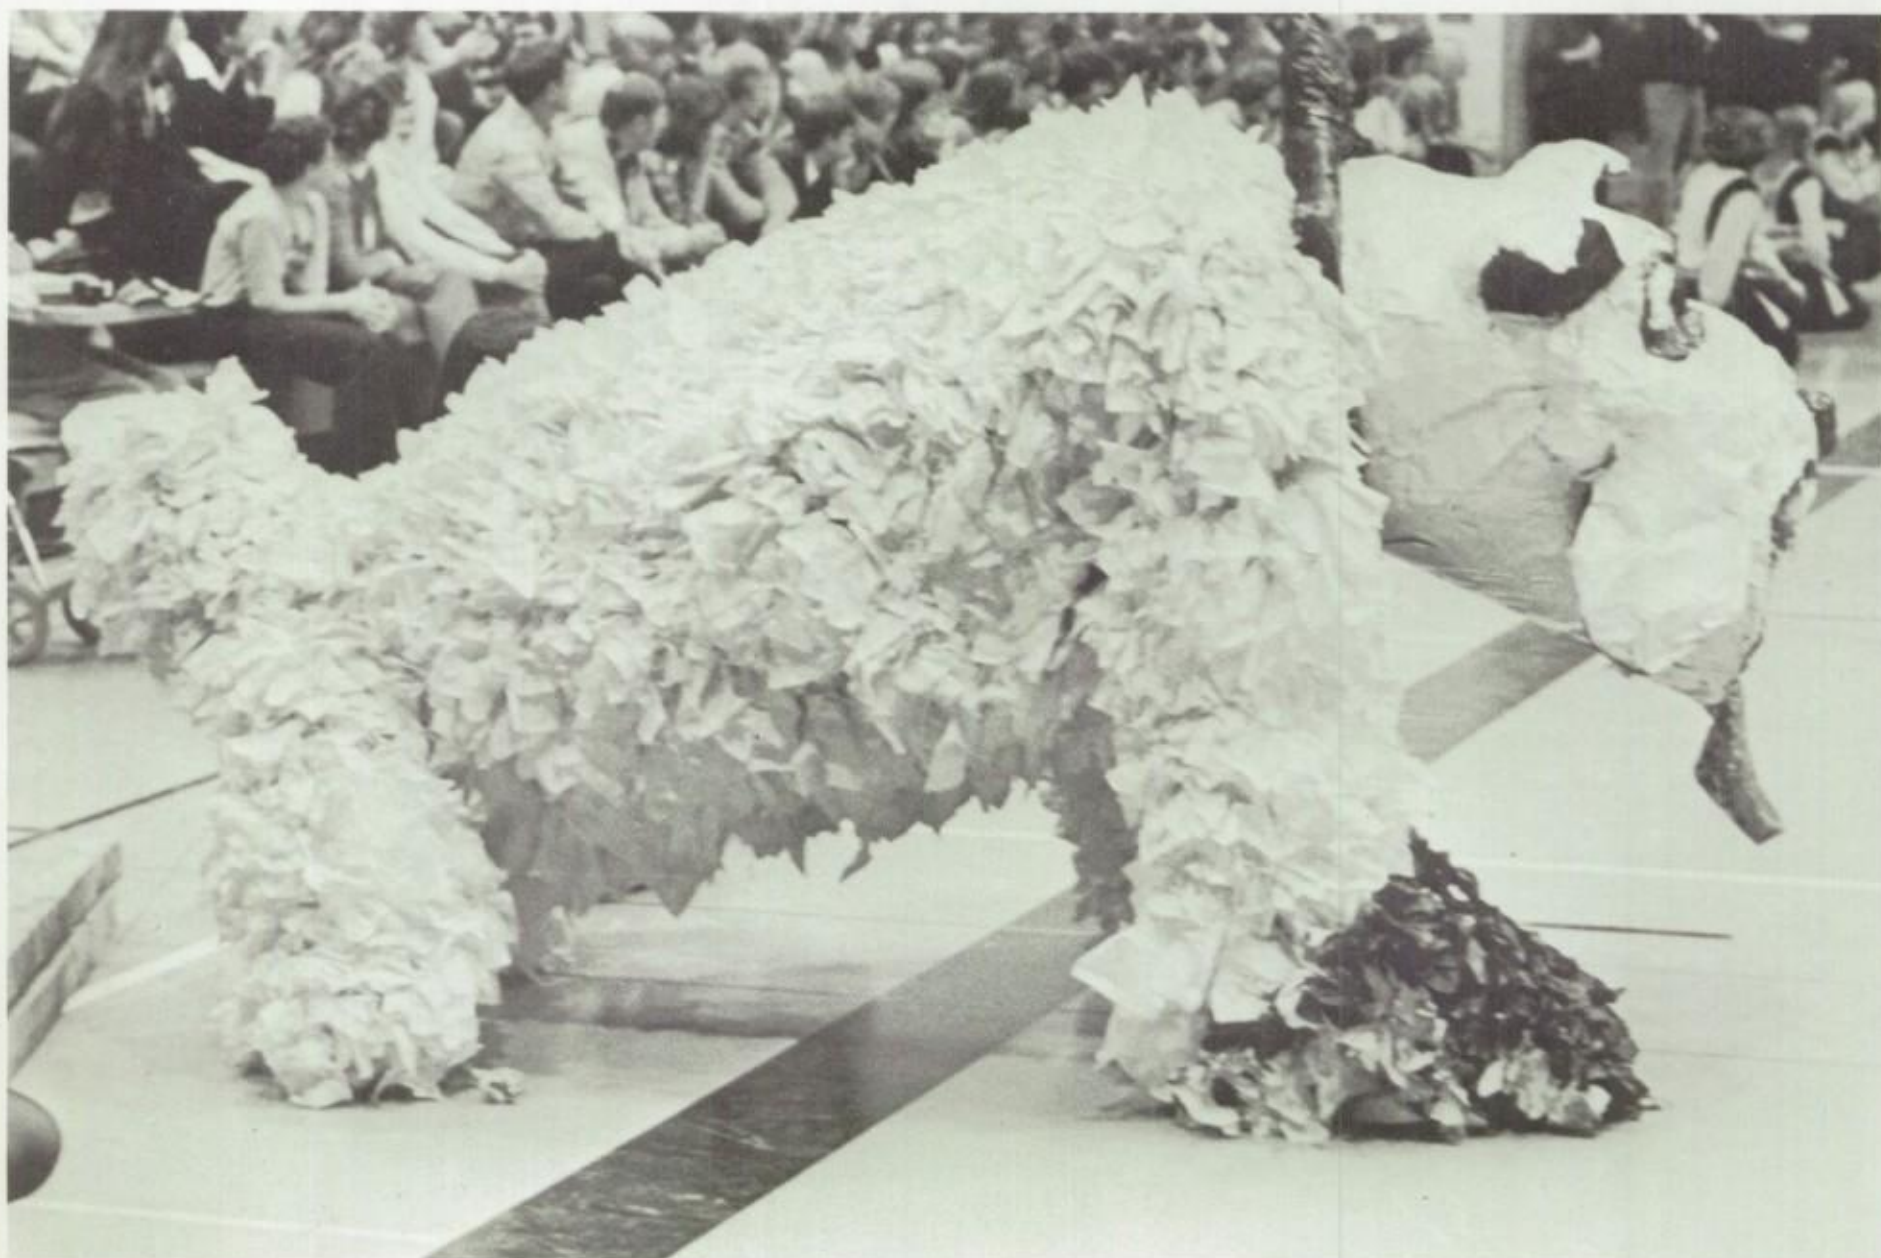

Linda Steeves locker is wrapped up like a package for her 17 birthday.

When all the winter sports' teams get together it's quite a mob.

The Bulldog from the winning senior float shows the good ole Bulldog spirit at the homecoming pep aud. The theme for their float was "A Knight for the Dogs."

Parade Marshal Archie Weindruch, elected most loyal fan, crusin' along in a Model A Ford.

A whole lot of fun

There was electricity in the air during the three day celebration of this year's homecoming.

"A Knight for the Dogs" was the theme of the seniors' winning float. The sophomores took second place, freshmen third, and juniors a disappointing fourth.

At the pep rally following the parade, King Mike Tatoian, Queen Marie Picchotti, and the homecoming court were introduced. Archie Weindruch, this year's most loyal fan, addressed the team and Principal Robert Stevens promised to carry Head Coach Merv Habenicht up the stadium steps when the Bulldogs won the game.

By Friday no one could concentrate on school work. At the pep aud at the end of the day, Mr. Spirit, Mr. Denny Thiessen, inspired the team to "Beat Assumption." There was a full stadium when the climax of the week's activities arrived. As the Bulldogs jogged onto the field the stadium exploded in cheers. The Bulldogs overpowered the Assumption Knights to gain their fifth victory. Principal Stevens kept his word and after a faltering start, toted a jubilant Coach Habenicht up the stadium steps.

On Saturday night the band "Inside Front" played to the theme of "Reminiscing" which everyone is sure to do after this memorable week of activities.

Kathy Vens, vice-president of the Junior Class, is covered with paper mache after spending many hours working on the junior float.

Doctor and Mrs. Stevens along with Mr. Leedle show that being "middle-aged" doesn't mean you can't disco dance.

Doctor Robert Stevens introduced all the members of the homecoming court at the pep rally before the night of the game.

Well, Hello, Dolly

The most expensive musical ever attempted at BHS, "Hello Dolly" also proved to be one of the most spectacular.

Dolly Levi, played by Carmie Henninger, is an arranger. During the play she not only arranges a match between Cornelius Hackl and Irene Malloy (James Booth and Connie Sample), but also arranges a marriage for herself to Horace Vandergelder. (Joe Priester)

Ernestina Money, played by Ruth Ann Freitag, brought down the house as Horace's date for the evening.

Adding to the mis-adventures were Barnaby Tucker, (Jon Pratt), Ermengarde (Sue MacLeod), and Minnie Fay, (Penny Sample).

Dolly was produced and directed by Howard Sible. The technical director was George Sipes, vocal director-Bernard Vogel, and orchestra director-Vern Hockett.

A member of the chorus, Wayne Haglund, wears his Sunday clothes.

Marriage is always a topic of discussion between single ladies. (Connie and Penny Sample)

Ice patterns on a tree attracted photographer John Kronkaitis.

Winter, the time when the sun gets lazy and forgets to put little rays of sunshine on the good ole earth. It is the time when little sister decides she wants to build a snowman, and its -3 below zero! Winter means trying to sneak into your first period class when you're late because of the weather, and finding out your teacher is a stickler to the tardy rule. It means getting up early to curl your hair for a certain guy, only to get to school and have him ask you why your dog is allowed to sleep in your hair. It means being called Phyllis Diller after you have just gotten out of swimming and having your hair freeze up straight when you walk through the courtyard. It means walking in backwards and running right smack into one of Otto's messes when you were only trying not to let your glasses fog up. Let's all just face it-winter is just another facet of your education when you live in Bettendorf, so we all might as well just dig in and shovel one, shovel two,

December 2, 1978, an ice storm hit the Quad-cities. Although it was pretty, it left driving dangerous a students praying for a vacation.

Senior Caren Armbrust was just one of the students who braved the cold weather for an entertaining snow fight in the courtyard. Here she pitches a handful of snow at the photographer.

Cornered in a snow fight, junior Sarah Howes prepares to defend herself against her assailants.

Snow isn't fun and games for everyone. Randy Rickman, senior, is one of the students hired by Bettendorf High to help with odd jobs — like clearing the courtyard sidewalks.

When you live in Iowa, vehicles like this one are common-place. Custodian Jim Jones clears a path after one of our snowstorms.

Rough and rowdy

"If they're in your way, dribble right through them! Knock 'em down! Trip them if you have to!" This is common advice given by many coaches of the civic center basketball teams.

Excitement and rampage abound the basketball court as victorious teams win their games with scores that are unreal. If you are on a team, you know that more happens on the floor than just a harmless game of basketball.

People end up sliding across the floor after basket balls and falling on their faces trying to keep the balls from going out of bounds. The players come out of the game with scratches, bruises, swollen knees, blisters, spranged fingers, smashed toes, and even a broken wrist.

After two twelve minute halves of fighting over the ball, the winners leave with victors' smiles spread across their faces, while the losers walk out disgusted over their loss. All in all, though, no matter if you finish in last place or in first, you are guaranteed a game of fun.

Seniors Kristi McNeish, Karen Depooter and Cheli Larson take time out from the action, as Bruce Fosdyck (12) and John Heniger (12) concentrate on the game.

Dan Jobst, '79 takes a jump shot while he is free of the defense.

Out to lunch

Each day at lunch, many juniors and seniors escape the confusion of the cafeteria by venturing to fast-food restaurants. Some go to Hardee's, Wendy's, Mr. Quick's, and McDonald's where they can get a hamburger, french fries, and a drink for about $1.50. Others, who prefer submarine sandwiches, spend the fifty minutes at Hungry Hobo. Then there are those who would rather have pizza, spaghetti, and salad for $2.29 at Pizza Inn's Luncheon Buffet. Many people who have the means to go out to lunch, but not the money, drive home. Going out for lunch is something that will never die out.

Sophomore Janet Waidelich wears a three piece suit outfit that was worn on days when you wanted to be more dressed up.

Just a pair of old blue jeans and a T-shirt were probably the most widely seen style in the halls this year as shown by a student thumbing through a magazine in guidance.

Fall Fashions '78 and '79 set a new trend for the way students dressed.

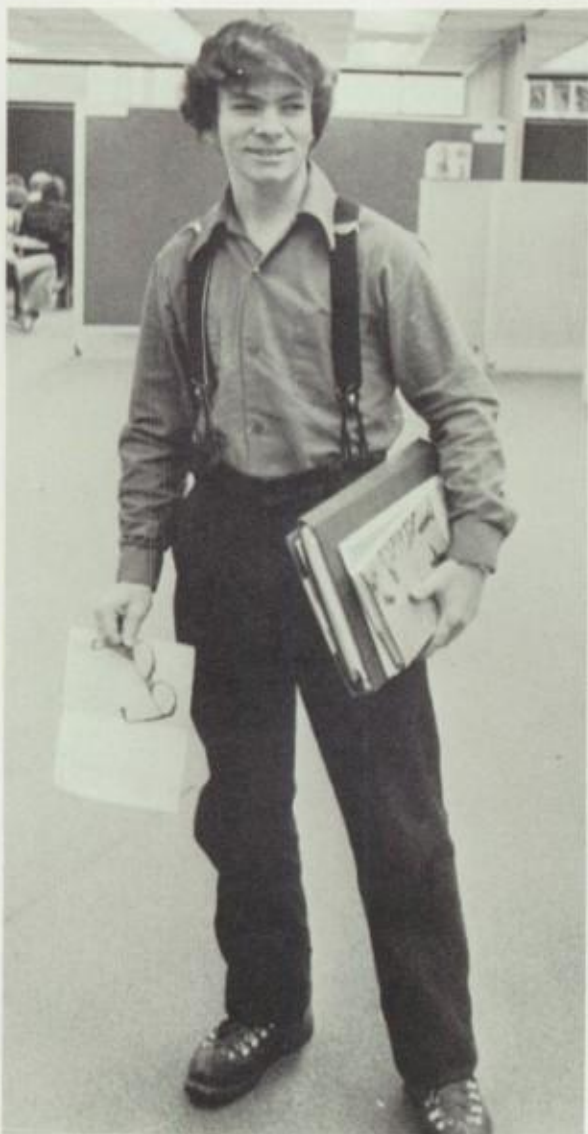

The look for young women was more manly with blazers, short straight-legged tapered pants and vests with big, full-sleeved blouses. Pleated skirts and skirts in plaid wools fell just to mid-calf and were accented with sweaters. Vested dresses were the formal scene and of course, the ever popular blue jeans were worn more than ever.

Colors tended to lean towards the earthy shades - browns, wines, rusts, purples, and beiges.

Guys wore V-necked sweaters, button-down shirts, and 3-piece suits with vests. Colors were similar to the ones girls were wearing.

Seniors, Kim Visser, Jane Vens and Betsy Lounsberry exhibit the highest of fashion while posing in a local store.

A survey of employed seniors taken by the guidance staff showed that seventy percent of the 480 seniors questioned are employed.

Results from the survey also showed that the largest percent of the employed seniors involved work in public services such as gas stations, banks, and the library. The rest of the employed seniors questioned have several different types of employment. These were retail sales, food services, recreation, construction trades, apprenticeship, and government.

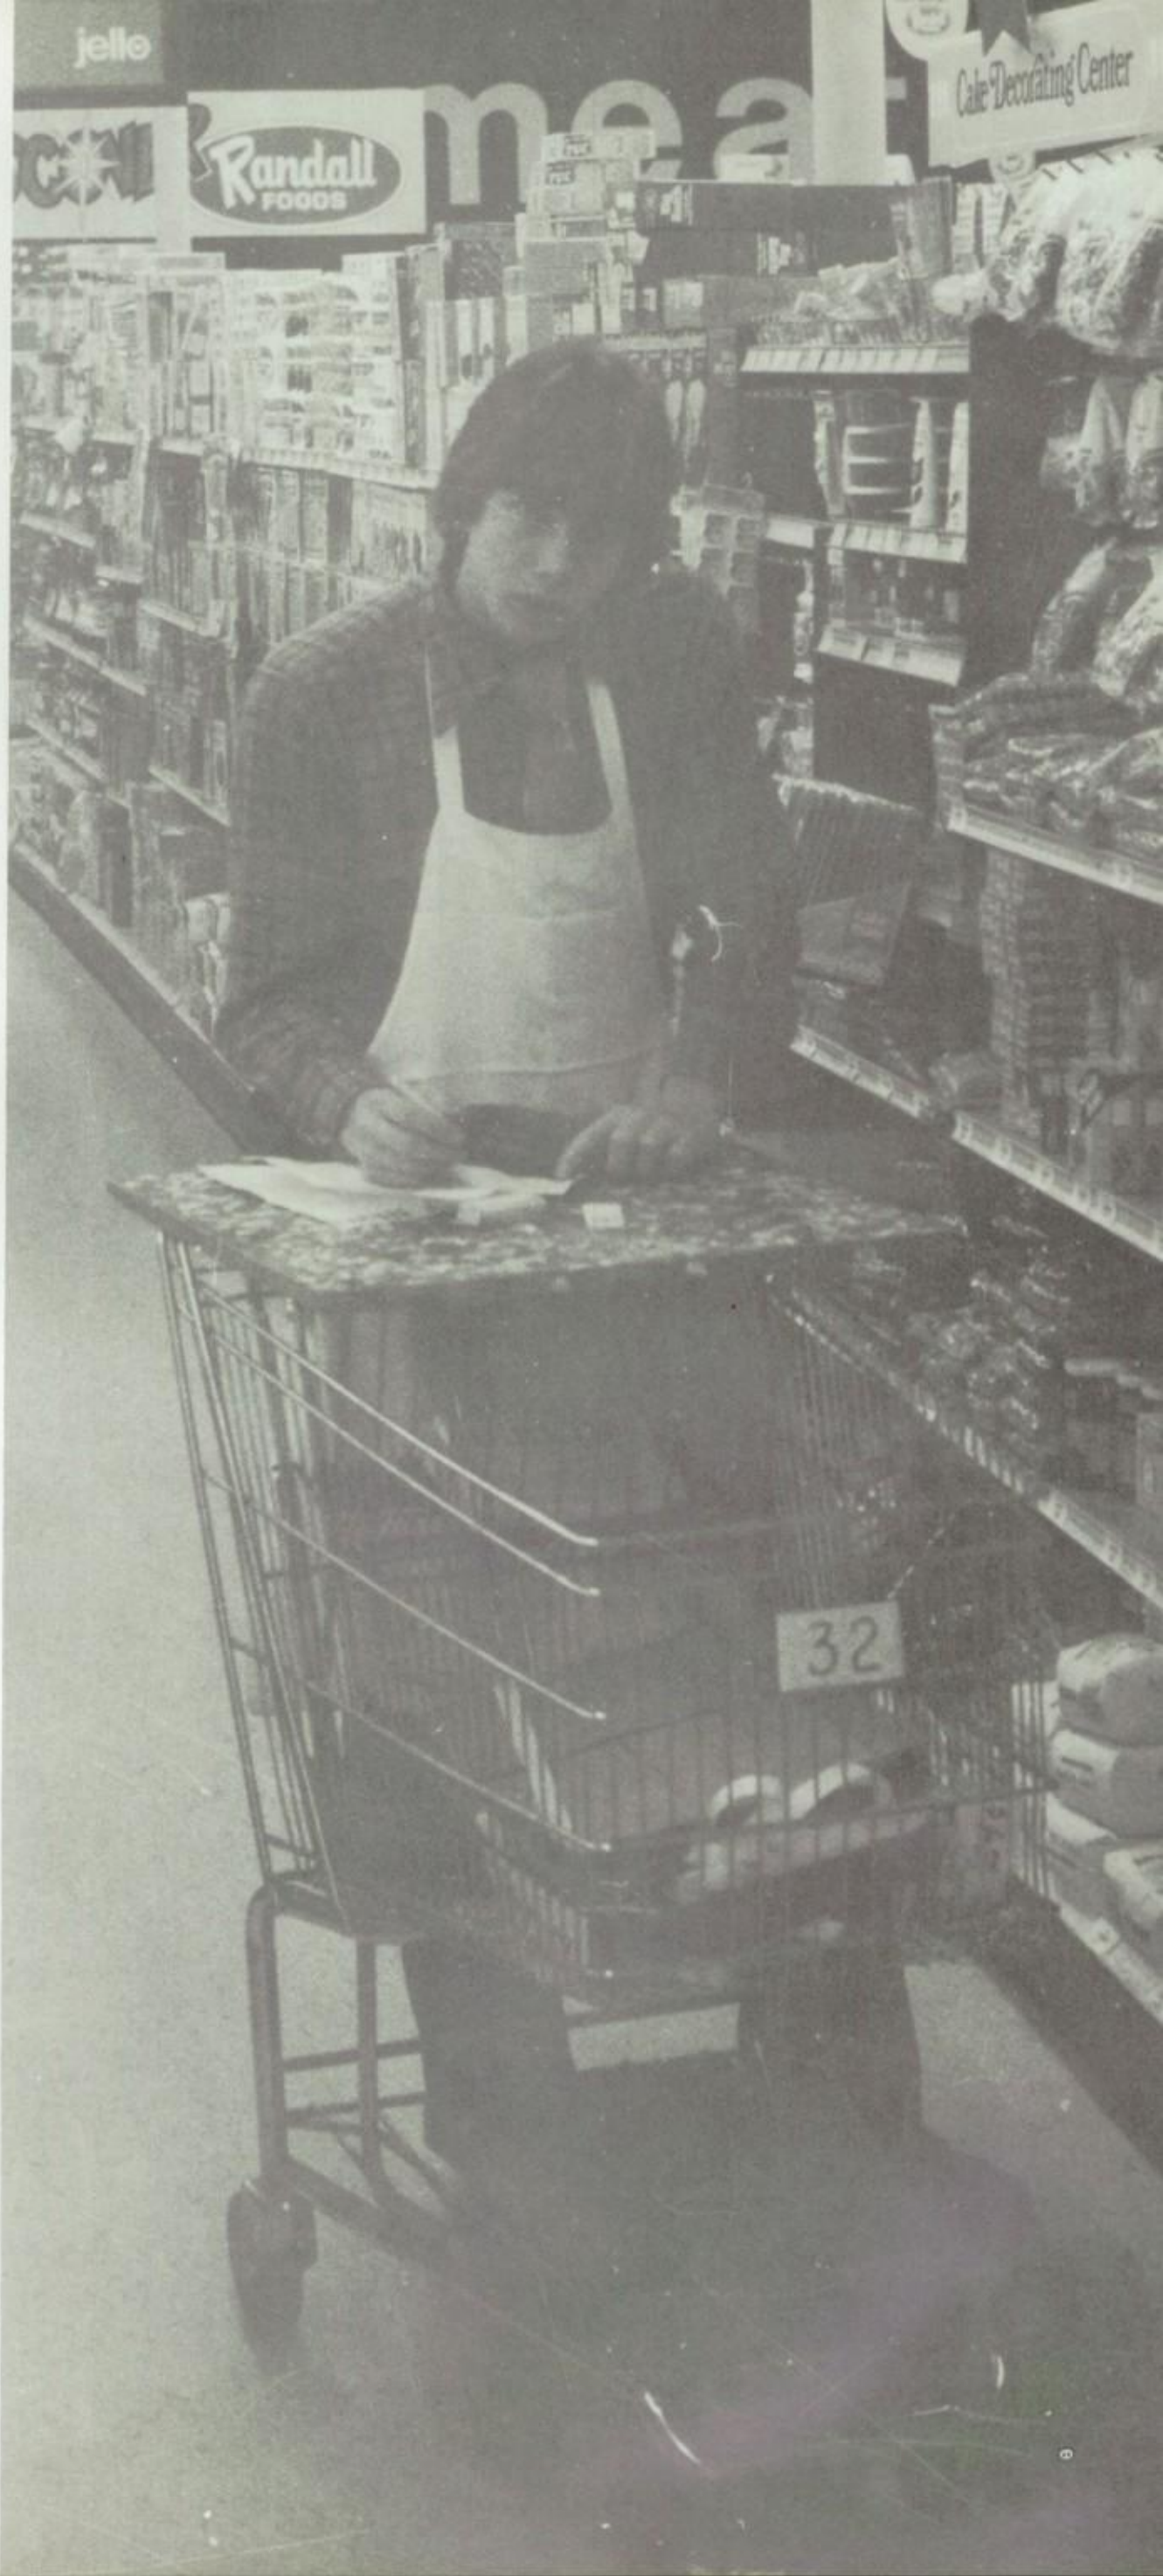

Before grade points were correlated with jobs, Dr. Stevens revealed his hypothesis, which stated that employment doesn't affect a student's grade. He was hopeful that the results of the correlation would agree.

Three employed seniors who enjoy their jobs agreed that new friends and spending money are definite advantages of being employed.

$ A little extra dough $

MONEY! Everyone needs it, but who's got it? Many students find that part-time jobs are the answer to pick up a "little extra dough."

If you are employed somewhere, you know what it's like on Fridays (before you get your paycheck) trying to scrape up enough pennies for lunch.

Maybe the following situation sounds familiar, also. Your watch says 5:23 (you're late for work), but your car is stuck in the snow. You've tried driving, digging, and pushing it out, but it hasn't moved an inch. Finally, you surrender to Mother Nature. Oh well! Late again.

Another time, you don't have any "diasters" on the way to work, but still, it takes you twenty-five minutes to drive a mile and a half. When you finally arrive at work, your manager explains to you that business has been slow. He tells you that he doesn't really need your help today, and would appreciate it if you leave within an hour.

Saturday mornings are for sleeping until noon, right? WRONG! Many bosses have the habit of calling you at nine on a Saturday morning (getting you out of your warm, comfortable bed) to ask if you'll come in and work. No matter what your excuse is, he's got a reason that sounds twice as logical. Oh well! Sometimes they want you and sometimes they don't.

If you work in a fast-food restaurant, you've probably experienced a Middle School food fight. You might even have a list of names of those kids who have been "permanently kicked out" because of their "uncontrollable behavior" which disrupts the dining pleasure of the other customers, (in other words, rowdiness.) The fights, which resemble those seen in "Animal House," result in shredded lettuce dried to the walls; tomatoes and buns in the napkin holders; potato chips covering the tables; and pop spilled on the floor. Cleaning it up can be a fun escapade for any able-bodied teenager.

The disadvantages of a part-time job! Oh well, at least you have that "little extra dough" to look forward to each week on paydays!

Three plays in two nights

Some went to the basketball games and some stayed home and pouted about the cold winter, but those of us who chose the stage forgot the freezing weather and did our best to entertain a small yet enthusiastic audience. In four nights all the weeks of hard work were over but every bit of that work showed as laughter reached our ears and applause filled our hearts.

With our faces saturated in make-up what was real left us and we became different people, exploring a storybook world.

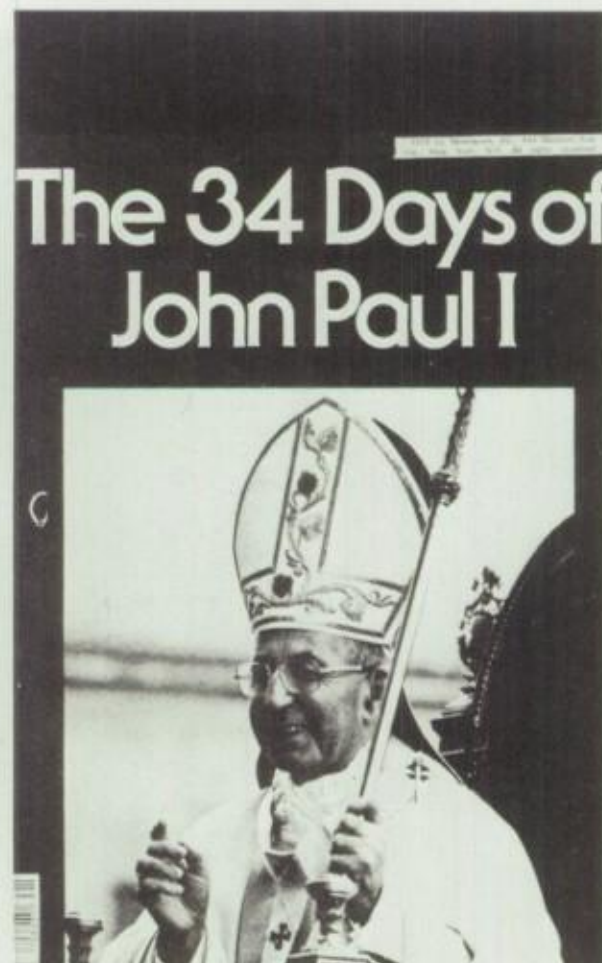

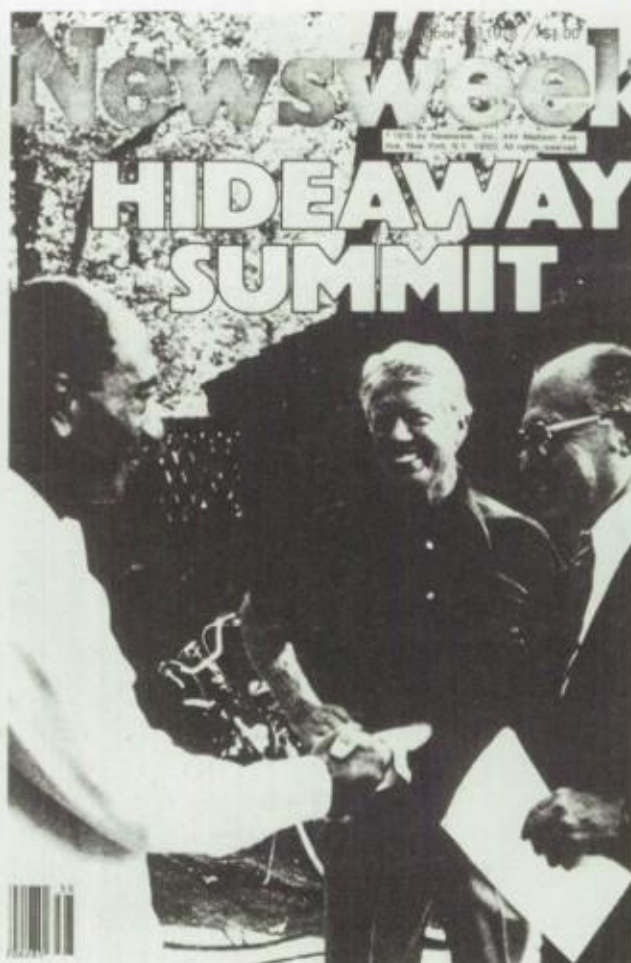

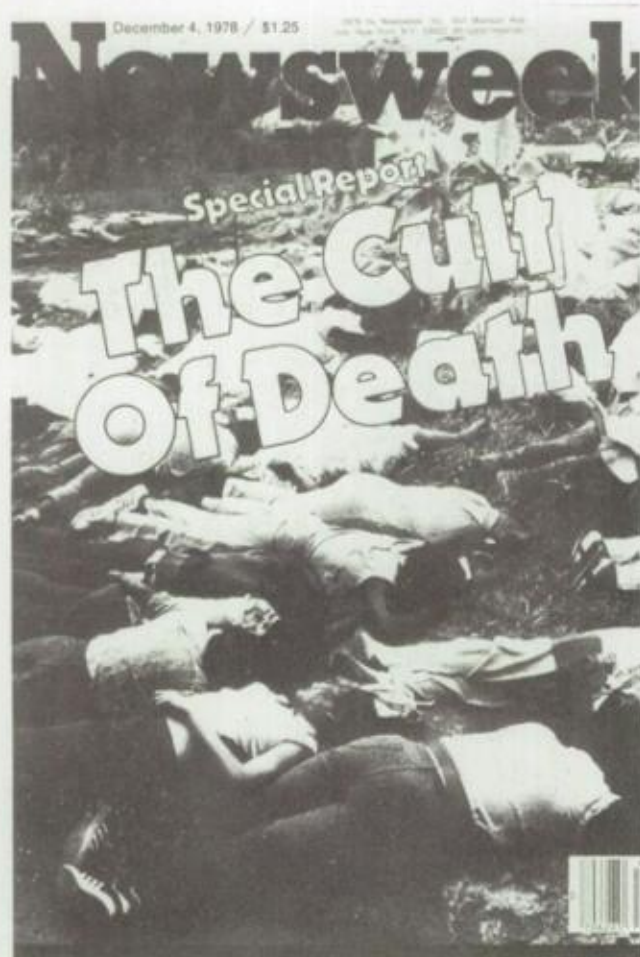

The lights are out now and the curtain is closed but we can still picture ourselves up on stage as the pretty maidens watch the king blow bubbles at the maniac who is killing the comic strip characters-and it all goes into another page in the scrapbooks of our minds!

Senior Carmie Henniger made several appearances during the course of "Feifer's People," each time giving her dance.

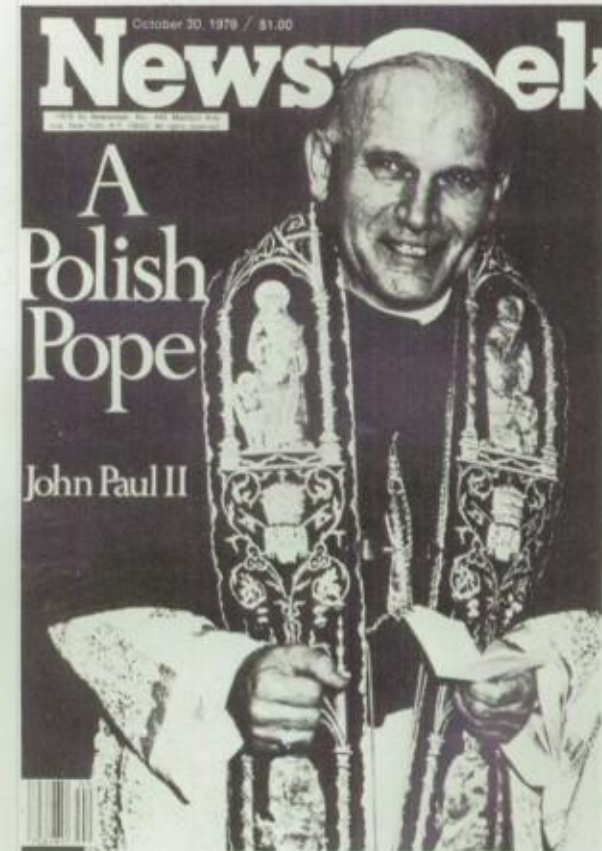

The entire cast of "Twain by the Tale" join in to sing "Tell me Pretty Maiden."

Nineteen seventy-nine, a year of laughter, tears, progress and setbacks. The year a little English girl, named Leslie Ann Brown, was conceived in a test tube. The year the midwest farmers drove their tractors over hundreds of miles using over 60,000 gallons of fuel to show President Carter that they were unhappy with farm prices, only to clog the traffic of Washington D.C. and be thrown in jail. The year the United States had her most tragic airplane crash, which took a total of 144 lives. It was a time when prayers were answered when smallpox was wiped out. A year when one single man and his group of followers, Jim Jones and the People's temple, committed a world-shocking mass suicide that took over 900 lives. It was a time when people dressed up in silvery tube tops and satin pants and danced to the high-pitched voice of Donna Summers while hypnotized by the flashing neon lights of the ever popular disco.

It was a time of creating new friendships, and ending old acquaintances as President Carter took up diplomatic relations with Red China, leaving Taiwan as an old but forgotten friend. It was a time when there was a spark of hope for the ending of the Middle East war as Carter hosted the Summit Talks at Camp David.

Decision 'A Courageous Act'

Carter Releases Patty Hearst

Planes Collide; 134 Die!

China Sweeps Into Vietnam

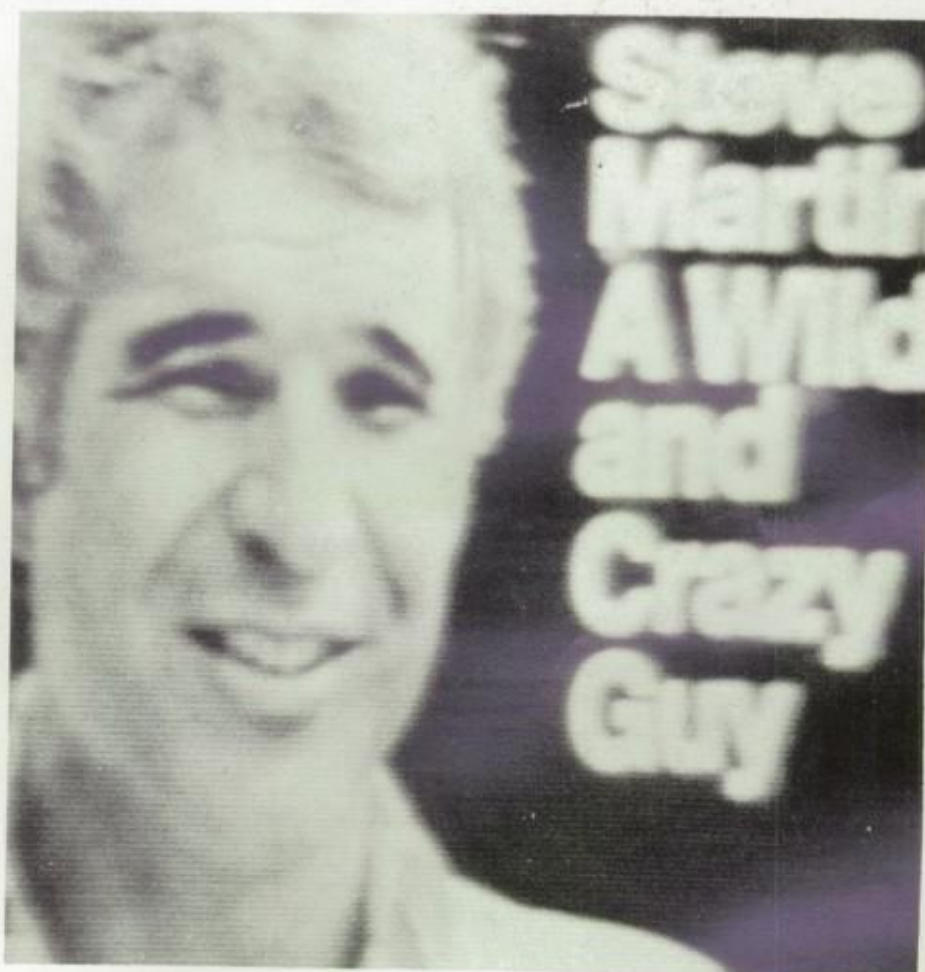

It was a period of time when the Catholic church mourned the death of their beloved Pope Paul, only to mourn again after the death of Pope John Paul I who reigned only 34 short days. The church celebrated the appointment of Pope John Paul II, the first Polish pope ever.

It was an era of uneasiness in the government and restlessness with the people as the Shah of Iran quietly left as Ayatollah Khomeini triumphantly re-entered the country after years of exile in Paris. It was a period of war and more war, as Chinese forces continued to sweep into Vietnam in punishment for the Vietnamese attacking Cambodia. It was the ending of a nightmare for one young woman as President Carter released

Patty Hearst after only six months of her two year sentence.

It was a time when not everything was such a serious matter. Americans waited up on Saturday nights to watch the insane and very funny Steve Martin; as Mork or Ork 'nanoo-nanooed' into the hearts of us all. It was a time of speeding bullets and powerful locomotives as Superman rescued us from our humdrum lives and carried us off to Krypton.

It was a year in which people took two steps forward for every step backward, a time of movement and hustle, creation and advancement. And through it all, there stood a small group of people at BHS who watched the year unfold, and made their own mark on it. The end of another decade - 1979.

This years Sweethearts candidates were Julie Cary (9), Betsy Nolan (10), Tami Frame (11), and Marie Pitchotti (12). Here Betsy Nolan recieves the good news that she will reign queen.

The group Headwinz once again provides the music for the evening. Their popularity stems from their acceptance and approval.

You're in my heart

"You're in my heart," was the theme for this year's Sweethearts dance held on February 10th in the cafeteria. Even though the turnout was not quite as large as it had been for the other dances that were held during the year that did not mean that it was any less successful, for the dance netted around $250 for the student council, who sponsors the annual event each year around Valentine's Day.

Love filled the air as Headwinz once again provided the music for the evening. They began playing at 9:00 but had only a few listeners on account of the girls varsity basketball game against Pleasant Valley. However, the crowd started to build around 10:00 when Sophomore Betsy Nolan was crowned queen for the evening.

Only moments before the crowning was to take place cupid bounded into the cafeteria wearing a white wig and red pillow like wings throwing rose petals and green pieces of tissue paper. To those who were not able to see through his mask Cupid was played by Sophomore Jack Green who consented to play the role for a mere fifteen dollars.

Not only did students who attended the dance look like they were having a good time, the teacher chaperons did as well (at least some of them did) as many of them really got into the affair and took their supervising of activities to the dance floor where they boogied right along with the students.

The cafeteria looked alive, a radical change from twinkie and cupcake plastered walls, as red tissue paper decorated pop bottles, and candy hearts graced each of the tables, and assorted shades of red, pink and white hearts covered the walls.

Overlooking any of the minor problems that always arise at any event of this size the night should be considered a success. Love had filled the room for a few short hours, people forgot about homework for the time being, and it was a chance to get out of the house after being stranded indoors because of the snow. It was definitely a February night to remember.

Even though the turnout was not as large as expected the dance floor was often crowded as many couples choose to dance.

One couple is silhouetted against one of the crepe paper hearts used as a wall decoration during the dance.

Sophomore Betsy Nolan seems to be caught off guard only moments before the crown was placed on her head making her this year's Sweethearts queen.

Some have to slave all weekend doing housework, but senior Jane and junior Kathy Ven's bedroom seems to have escaped the cleaning.

Weekends the time when you let yourself go. It's what keeps you going through the long and boring week of tests.

It gives you a chance to relax, recuperate, and get ready for the next hectic week. What do you do on the weekends?

Katie Stegmaier (12), "Get rowdie."

Cheryl Harter (11), "Well, of course, I stay home and study."

Linda Hillery (12), "Go to the games."

A sight common to every Bettendorf High Student: "the one's" in Davenport.

Bill Coffenberry (12) and Jim Logan (11) usually manage to find some time on Saturday afternoons to play a game of tennis at the Quint City Racquet Club.

The Extras

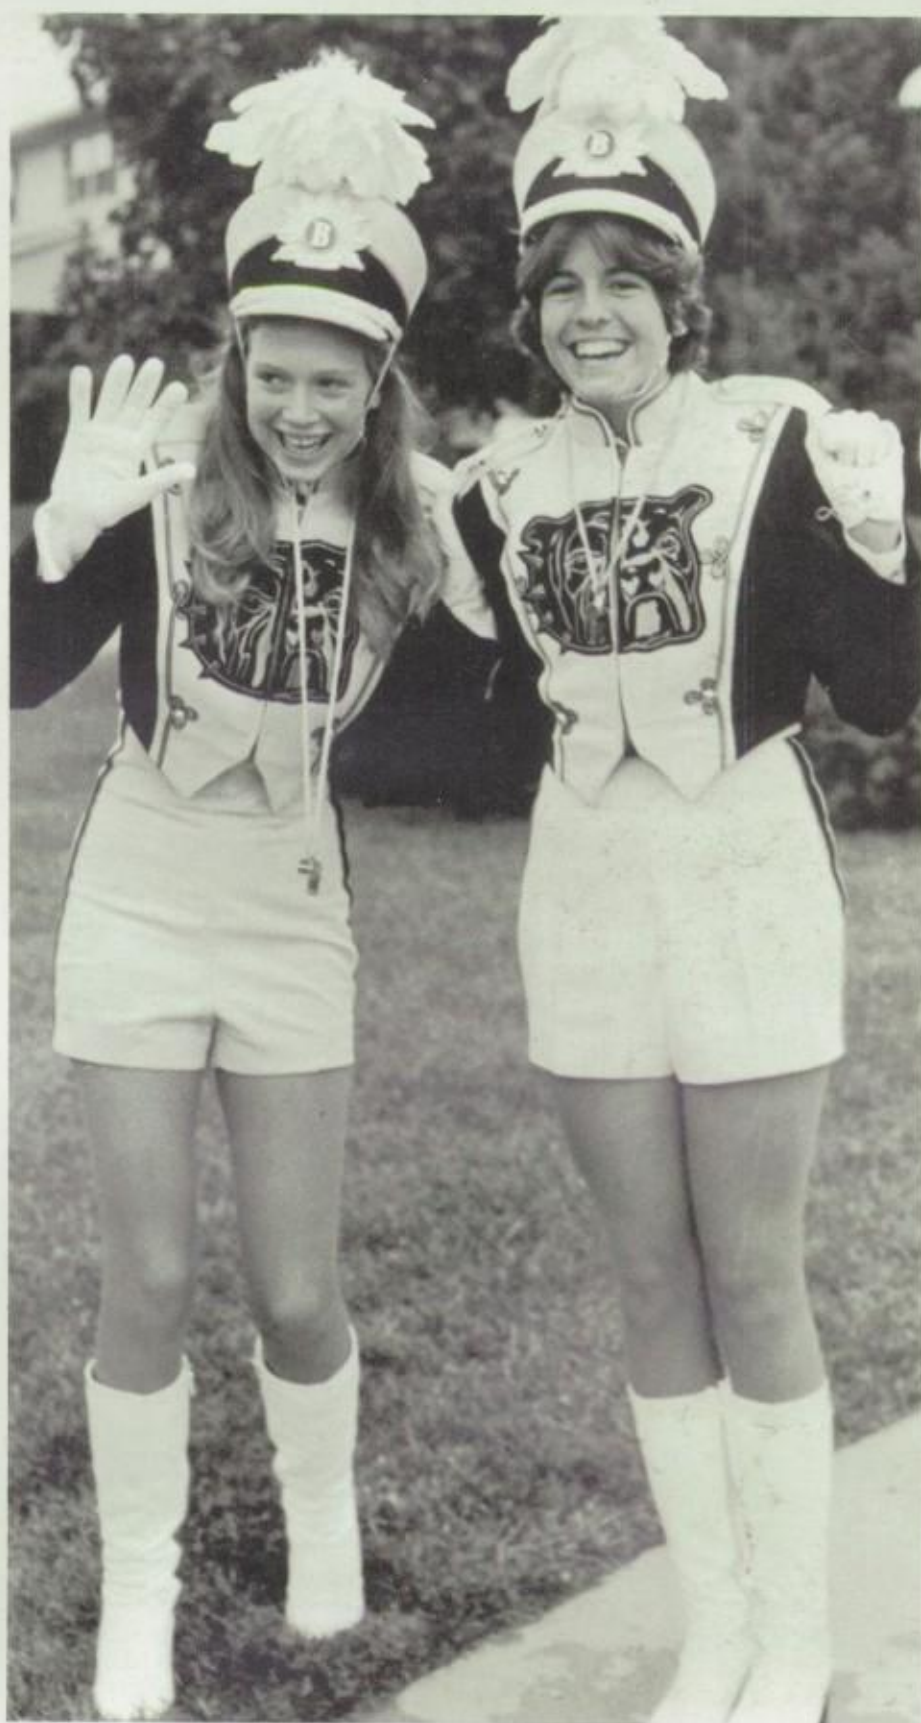

Sometimes the set for a drama production can be as interesting finished as unfinished.

The Student Council does more than you think. They are the unsung heroes of the high school. They live in the shadows, they wallow in the things that didn't work out just right (the turnabout election), and they are constantly spending hours of their free time planning things that often go unnoticed by the student body. Sure, students know that they plan the dances, and all the things that go along with Homecoming, but what they don't realize is that they do alot more. I can tell that you are still not convinced, so here is a list of only about half the things that they did: the Bulldog bulletin, the Golden Dawn Review (a show for charity), student interest day, student exchanges with other high schools, intermural bowling and tennis, and the blood drive. They also paid for the color page that appears in the opening of this book because of some staff financial problems. (That was about $500 of help-thanks).

Spending your free time escorting a group of parents around the school, or spending a basketball game holding a rope are not the most exciting things to your average high school student, but they have got to be done, and are by a great group of people known as the ones that are always there to lend a helping hand.

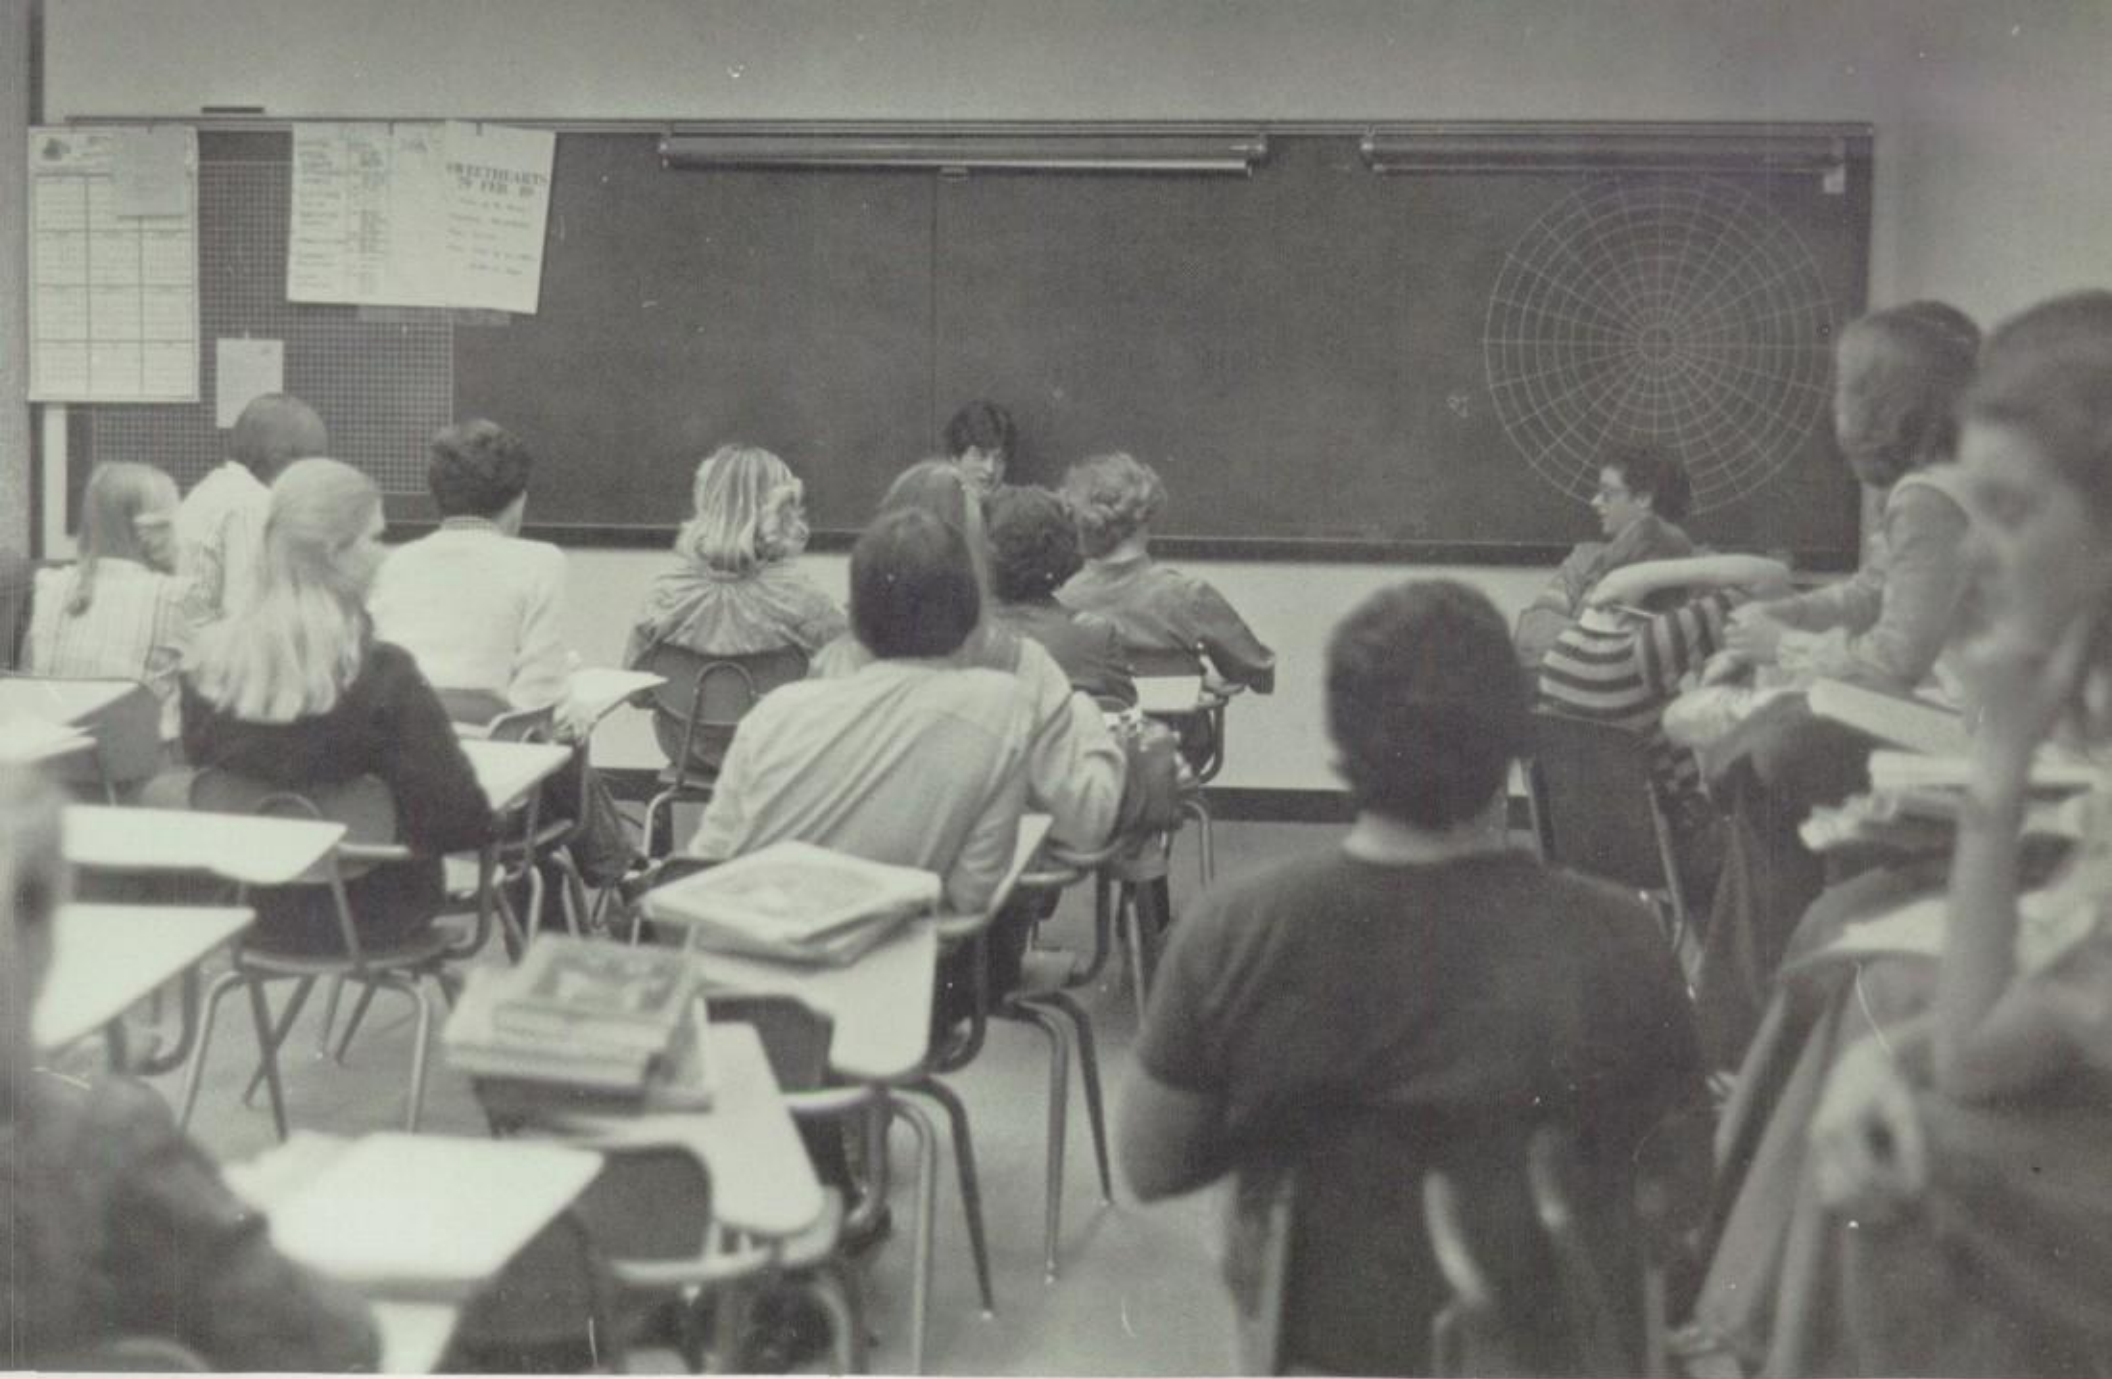

Both these groups together provide their services to the school for nothing making them a special group of people doing a necessary and special job. Thanks to them both!

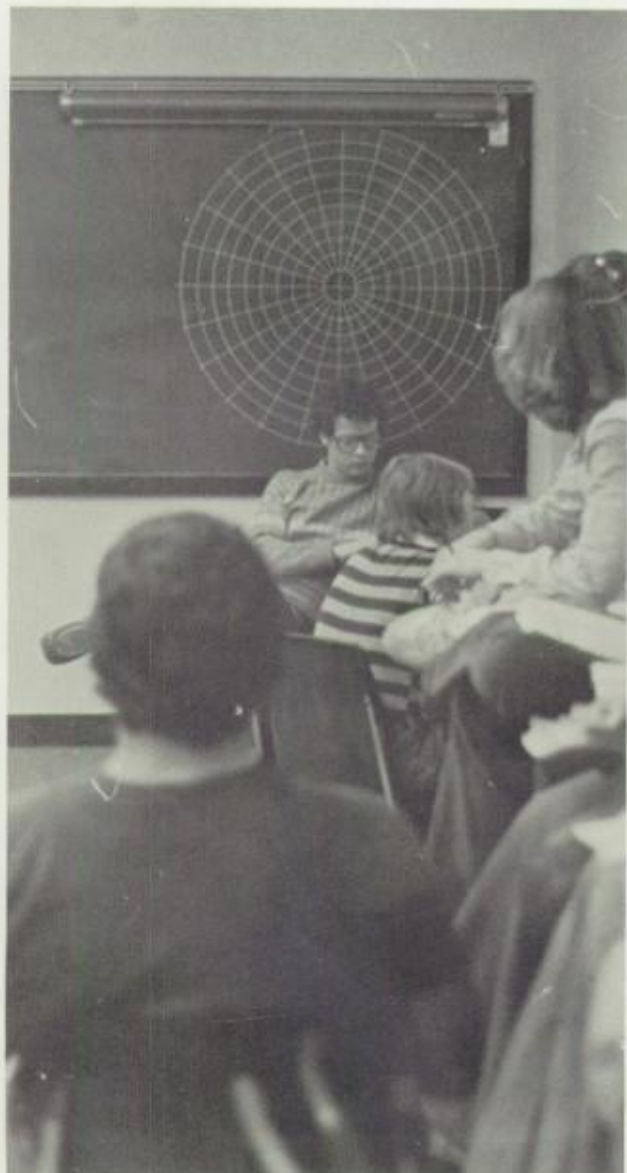

The Happy Bulldogs

One of the jobs of a happy bulldog is to be the official hosts at basketball games, as shown by two Bulldogs wearing their characteristic gold jackets and pins.

The Student Council met each Wednesday in the math lab, the meetings were semi-formal, and run using parliamentary procedure. Here one of the typical meetings is shown

The meetings were run under the direction of Student Body President Jeff Smith. Here he is shown in his usual place during one of the meetings.

Mr. Price took over the job of advisor to the Student Council with the parting of Mr. Blackwell in January. Both helped keep order as well as brought many helpful thoughts and ideas.

A whole lot of people

It takes a whole lot of people to make up the groups known as FCA and student leaders.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes, under the direction of Mr. Reggie Speak, has a membership that is continually growing and this year was no exception. At FCA meetings, students are divided into huddle groups, where they have a chance to talk on various topics.

What would the gym teachers do without student leaders? After all who else would want to lead the class in exercises or demonstrate the proper way of spiking a volleyball. No one but a student leader volunteers to referee a game of basketball or helps to put away the equipment after class. All these efforts and more help to make the gym classes run smoothly.

Student leaders help students sign up for their third quarter P.E. classes.

Para el Club de Español, el año 1978 se recordará . Como iniciación todos nuevos miembros se vendado de ojos y tuvieron que haver cosas tontas, pero valió la pena cuando comieron toda la comida! Seguramente, todos esperan con placer el nuevo año de 1979. No hay fin a las posibilidades a lo que pueden hacer los conquistadore¡Viva el Club de Espanol!

Comparison is the topic, as president of Spanish Club, Kate Allee, and Susan Schooley converse with a member from the Central high school Spanish Club.

Foreign Language planned a few things for the 1978-79 year. A new reading program went into effect.

The Department had a special week set aside as Foreign Language week. It was full of different kinds of things Foreign Language is doing or has done. The week helped promote the courses to students not already involved with a foreign language.

The week started with an All-clubs Dance the Saturday before. During the week, they displayed their various class activities and what they are planning on doing for the summer.

Spanish club is taking a trip to Spain, Latin club is planning on going to Michigan State University's National Latin Conference, French Club wants to go to Quebec, and German Club is off to Germany.

French Club members, Chris White and Jamie Patten, relax during the Christmas party which was held at a member's house.

A foreign flavor

The German Club

Many students each year take a foreign language. For some that is as far as it goes, but for others the classroom is only one part of their "foreign experience." These people are the ones that can be seen in school after hours in the I and I area chatting in their second tongue, they are the ones that spend their extra hours selling anything from cheese to candy, and they are the ones that are always there to volunteer their services to the school whenever they are needed.

The Asian Club was the newest thing at BHS this year. The "Year of the Dog" was a rather hectic one with getting organized and up above $0.00. The club decorated for Turnabout, among other projects to make money for its big event: a trip to China Town in Chicago.

One thousand, two hundred, and fifty dollars is a lot of money especially for the German Club that just started its existence last year. Four hundred and thirty eight of the smackers came from the selling of pizzas. The question now arises what can a German Club do with all that money? Go to Germany of course, the trip being planned for sometime this summer.

The Latin Club, also known to its members as JCL or Junior Classical League is another one of the foreign language clubs. They spend a lot of time preparing for their annual convention as well as planning for their many other activities. It's just another one of those "with it" clubs that help make BHS the great place that it is.

The quiet clubs. These are known as OE, VICA, DECA, and UN. It is not that these organizations aren't active its just that to most students these groups are somewhat unknown.

In OE, VICA, and DECA students work for half the day and attend school the other half. While doing this they grasp hold of real world working experiences and make money at the same time. This is not something that they just happen to decide for they begin planning their year early the preceeding Spring, when they go out and contact prospective employers in search for the "perfect" job. Most of the students involved feel that giving up some parts of their senior year is well worth the valuable knowledge and insight that is gained.

UN is a club that studies the functions and the functioning of the United Nations. They spend a great deal of time each year preparing for their "event", a model UN in Cedar Falls. This year they represented the countries of East Germany and Mozambique.

Down the slopes

The Ski Club has entered its second year and its stronger than ever with a more enthusiastic, more energetic and more spirited membership, making it one of the most popular clubs in the school. It's for the skier and the non-skier, it's for freshmen and for the seniors, and in general its for anyone who likes the outdoors and who wants to have a good time. Lead by president, Tina Coin, and vice-president, Chris White, many trips were taken, and a lot of fund raising was done. Sure there were a lot of falls, and a lot of frozen fingers, but to all who took an active role in the club it was more then worth the small inconveniences.

Pedal pushers

The Pedal ushers of BHS, more commonly called the bike club, are celebrating their second anniversary this year. Lead by president, Teresa Neville, and vice-president, Kim Wright the club has enjoyed a number of trips, and outings, one even in Wisconsin. One thing for sure is that all the members are in the best of shape and are having a great time just riding around.

When you come to Bettendorf High you have the choice of taking Freshman chorus. In this underclass chorus Mr. Bernie Vogel, director, puts a lot of emphasis on sight reading and musical rhythm. If you decide to go on in your sophomore year you join Choisters and may also try out for Choristers Ensemble, an extra group for sophomores. In these two choruses Mr. Vogel stresses the development of tone quality and more sight reading.

Choristers do more A-Capella work then they did as freshmen. The three groups perform at least four times a year, once in the fall, twice in the winter and once in the spring.

Freshmen and Choristers Ensemblers both get two credits for their efforts while Choristers receive one.

Posture and attitude

The outlook of the upperclass choirs this year has changed. Their music has remained as good as usual, but their attire is different. They have gone from wearing dress outfits to getting matching outfits.

A Cappella choir is one example of this clothing change. The girls' new outfits are dark blue wrap-skirts with white blouses and the boys wear dress blue slacks with white shirts. All of them wear gold vests with A-Cappella gold emblems. Their old outfits were plain blue robes with gold collars.

A Cappella choir is the largest of the three upperclass choirs, consisting of forty members, and it is the only one with combined classes of juniors and seniors. They usually sing traditional A Cappella choir music which is both accompanied and unaccompanied.

Chamber choir's new outfits are long black skirts with white blouses for the girls and dress black and white suits with blue ruffled shirts for the boys. Their music is chamber or Madrigal music of the Renaissance and almost all of it is unaccompanied. In the Chamber choir there are approximately twelve members this year and all are selected members for A Cappella choir.

The third upperclass choir is Young Voices, a swing choir which sings popular music. Combo and other instruments are often used for accompaniment. This group also received new outfits this year. The girls have maroon skirts with gray blouses and the boys have maroon shirts with gray slacks.

Young Voices has twenty members and, like Chamber choir, it is also a select group.

Mr. Bernie Vogel is the director of A Capella choir and Chamber choir. The director of Young Voices is Vern Hockett. The three upperclass choirs throughout the year have performed in a fall concert, a December holiday concert, a February holiday concert, the variety show, a joint community concert with Pleasant Valley high school, a tour concert, and the contemporary concert at the end of the year.

A Cappella choir meets on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, third period, and Chamber choir and Young Vocies both meet on Tuesday during third period.

Concert Band

This year's Concert Band is directed by Mr. William Camphouse. The Concert Band is made up of mostly freshmen, a few sophomores, and a couple of juniors. The band rehearses everyday during 3rd period. During the course of the year the band will have performed four concerts and also a short tour in the spring.

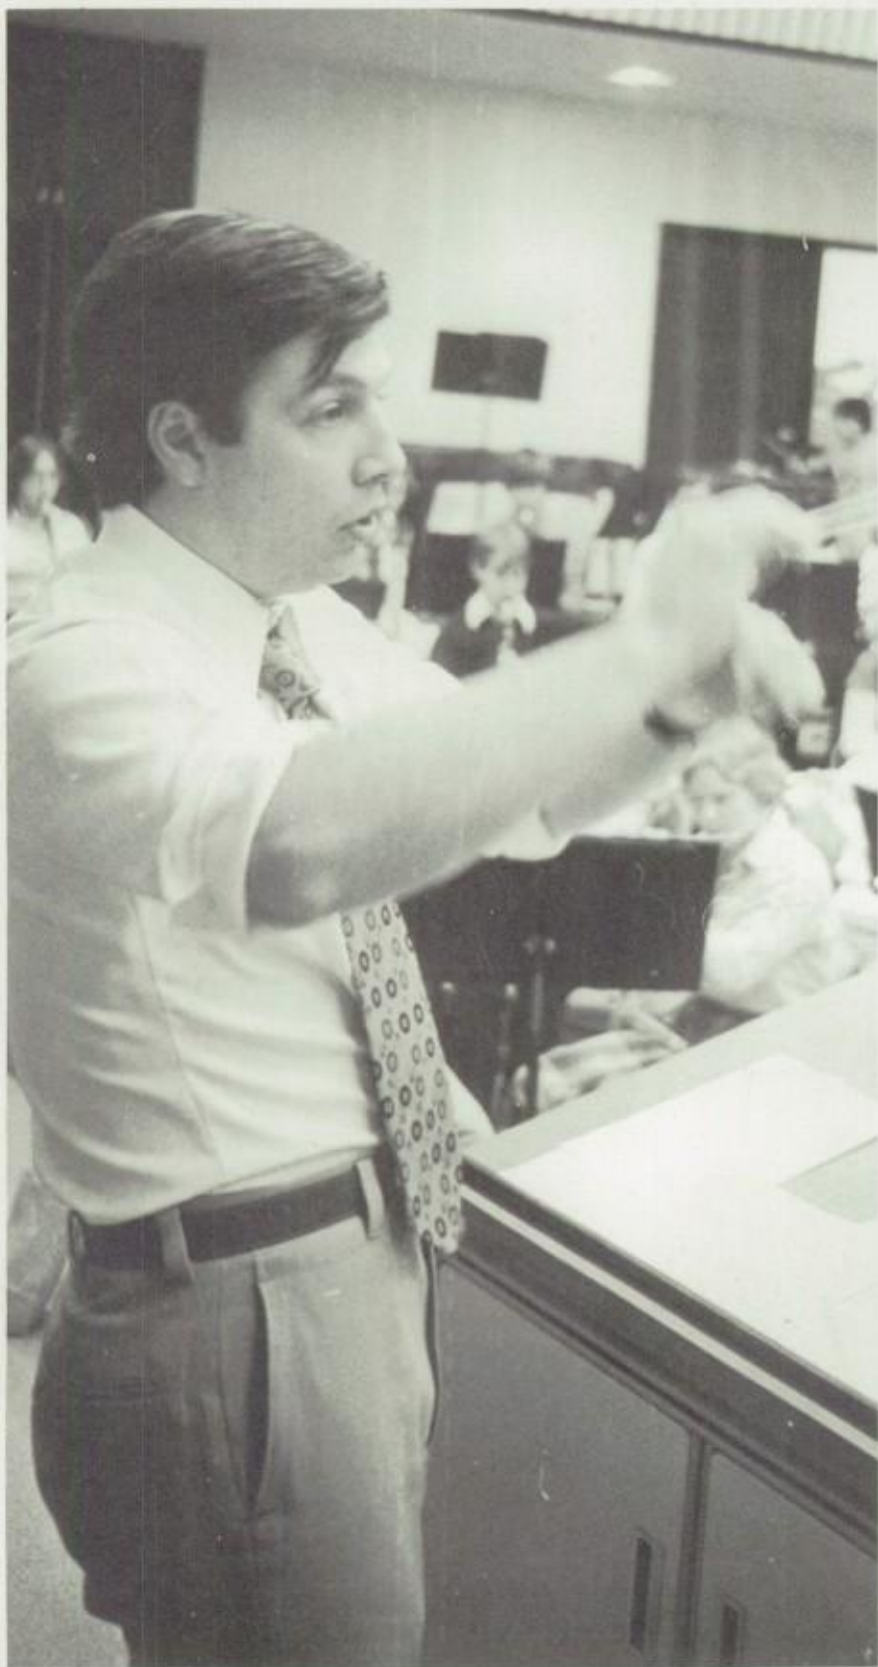

This is the first year the band has elected representatives to make decisions and organize projects. They also gather information on things to do. The representatives are Gary Mathews and Jeanine Wolbers for the freshmen, Steve Nowachek, and Darcy Vanderhood for the sophomores, and Dan Tatarka and Craig Pollak are representatives for the Juniors. One of the projects the representatives helped to organize was the T-Shirts. Each member of the Concert Band recieved a shirt. A contest was held to choose the design for the front of the shirt. Heidi Kerber recieved $10 dollars as the contest winner. As you may have noticed, there were three drum majors for the Concert Band this year. They were Lisa Feddersen, Kim Jewell, and Steve Nowachek. The drum majors led the band in both the Homecoming and Halloween parades, as well as the half-time Homecoming show. All three drum majors worked with the band everyday during marching season. This is the first year the concert Band recieved T-Shirts, elected representatives and had three drum majors, it also is the first year that the band has cut a record. When the director was asked what he would like to remember most about this year's Concert Band he replied, "In an overall comparison to all my other bands, this year's band has been the quickest to improve their abilities and skills."

Marching in Homecoming Parade is an annual event for the concert band.

Orchestra

This year's orchestra consists of nine members, one of them being an exchange student. There are freshmen, sophomores, as well as juniors and seniors. The director is Mrs. Carita Dyas. They practice every day during 2nd period. Throughout the year they will have performed three concerts. They also played at Augustana College. The orchestra performs for organizations and accompanies the plays. Most of the members will be participating in the State Solo contest.

Mr. Camphouse spent many hours in the position as shown for it takes many hours of practice to prepare for a concert.

THE band is sooo big it is called the "Monster Marching Band." What is meant by big is that there are 119 members of what is also called the symphonic band. The band spends many hours practicing for each performance either on a cold, damp football field or in a stuffy, hot room. To be perfectly honest that is what is known as true dedication. Mr. Earnest Beerends is the bands director and he recognizes all the hours of work by saying, "The kids are extremely fine musicians with good attitudes." Last summer though, all the work paid off with a trip to Canada to play in a festival in which the band placed very well. In addition, each year the band members place well in all types of state competition making them a prestigious group at BHS.

Dogs do it better

"And here comes the Bulldogs!" announced the loudspeaker as the varsity football team jogged out onto the field. When the Bulldogs jogged off after the game, there was no doubt in anyone's mind that this was truly "The Year of the Dog."

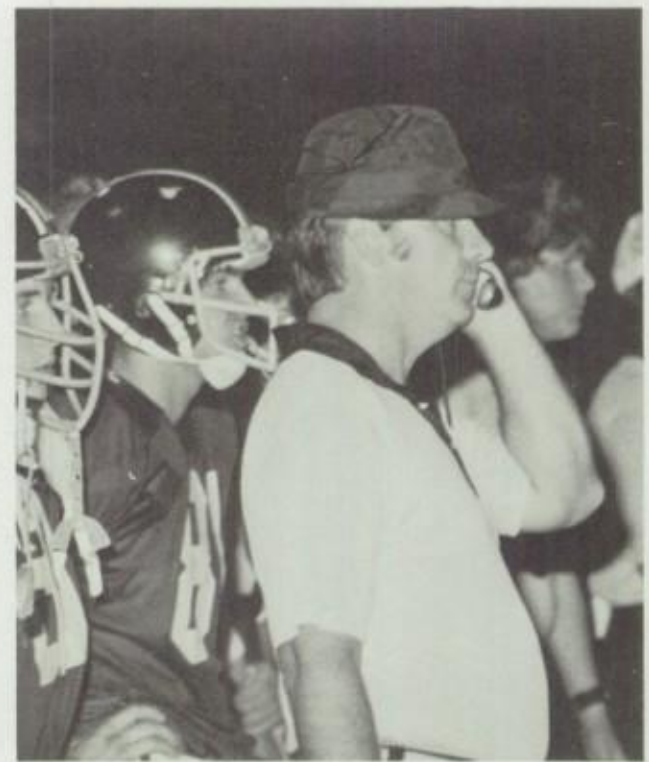

After suffering a defeat to UTHS in the opening game of the season, the Bulldogs came back and stormed to a first place in the conference. Offensive coordinator Tom Freeman commented, "After our first game people didn't think that we were very good. We had our backs against the wall all the way. Even though we had a few bad breaks, we fought all the way. That says something about the kind of team we had."

When the Bulldog's offense stalled, the mighty gold crush defense came in and dominated the opponent. The Bulldogs recorded shutouts in four games.

The Bulldogs watched a state playoff slip through their fingers as they suffered an agonizing defeat to Clinton in the final game of the season. Although the Bulldogs and the River Kings had identical records, the River Kings advanced to the playoffs through the complicated point system used in Iowa.

Commenting on the season Head Coach Merv Habenicht said "it was the first year in the new conference, we had a 7-2 record, tied for first place in the conference, we beat all the Davenport teams, we also ended up ranked eighth in the state. Hell, we had a great year!"

A quick line, elusive backs and a heads-up defense are just some of the reasons this year's sophomore football team went undefeated.

The sophomores were not behind all year and outscored their opponents an average of 28-8.

"I'd like to name names," said Head Coach Gary Hirsh, "but it was really a team effort." Over 30 people started each game with only two playing both offense and defense.

"The one word that best describes the team would be intelligent," said Coach Hirsh. "They learned their assignments quickly and were ready to play."

Attack those hills

Running nine miles on country roads or doing fourteen 440's between 80-90 seconds may sound crazy, but the cross country teams proved it pays to be a little insane. Both teams placed well in the state meet this year.

Cross country is not all hard work, as team members often got together after practice. They played football on Sunday, celebrated Erin O'Neill's birthday and drew pictures of Bob "bugeyes" Pruden.

Part of the reason they were so successful is that they did many things with each other producing two close-knit teams.

The Bulldogs made an impressive start in the new Mississippi Eight conference with an undisputed mark of 12-0.

Some of the highlights of their season were the first place finish in the North Scott Invitational where they defeated Davenport Central 15-4, 15-12. They also finished fourth in the Dubuque Invitational and the Bettendorf Invitational.

"This years' team was the strongest and most aggressive one I've ever had," reflected Coach Diane Sulentic. "I was proud of the way they performed throughout the year and the fact that no other team I've had has gone undefeated in their conference. "Where's that clipboard," was always heard while preparing for a meet. The managers (pictured above, Suzy Johnson, Mark Hippler and Joan Schmidt), had to be organizers and frequently went down the checklist to ensure that nothing was missing. Answering the phone, taking splits and keeping up the point chart were part of their routine also. (not pictured, Dino Ramirez)

Self-discipline is the key word for a successful swimming season. Our Sharks and Sponges toed the mark with energy and spirit.

The 1978-1979 Sharks were a hard-working school of fish. But along with a successful season they managed to enjoy many activities. Potty breaks and potluck practices relieved tough training sessions. Wind sprints, the number varying with the number of wet towels left on the locker room floor, kept the girls in shape. Swimming under the regard of the ogle-eyed football players, the girls showed they were real "speds."

The boys had fun too. An occasional game of animal ball broke up the monotonous practices, while Christmas carols were sung on the way home from the Clinton Invitational. After a meet, hunger pangs were satisfied with Godfather's pizza.

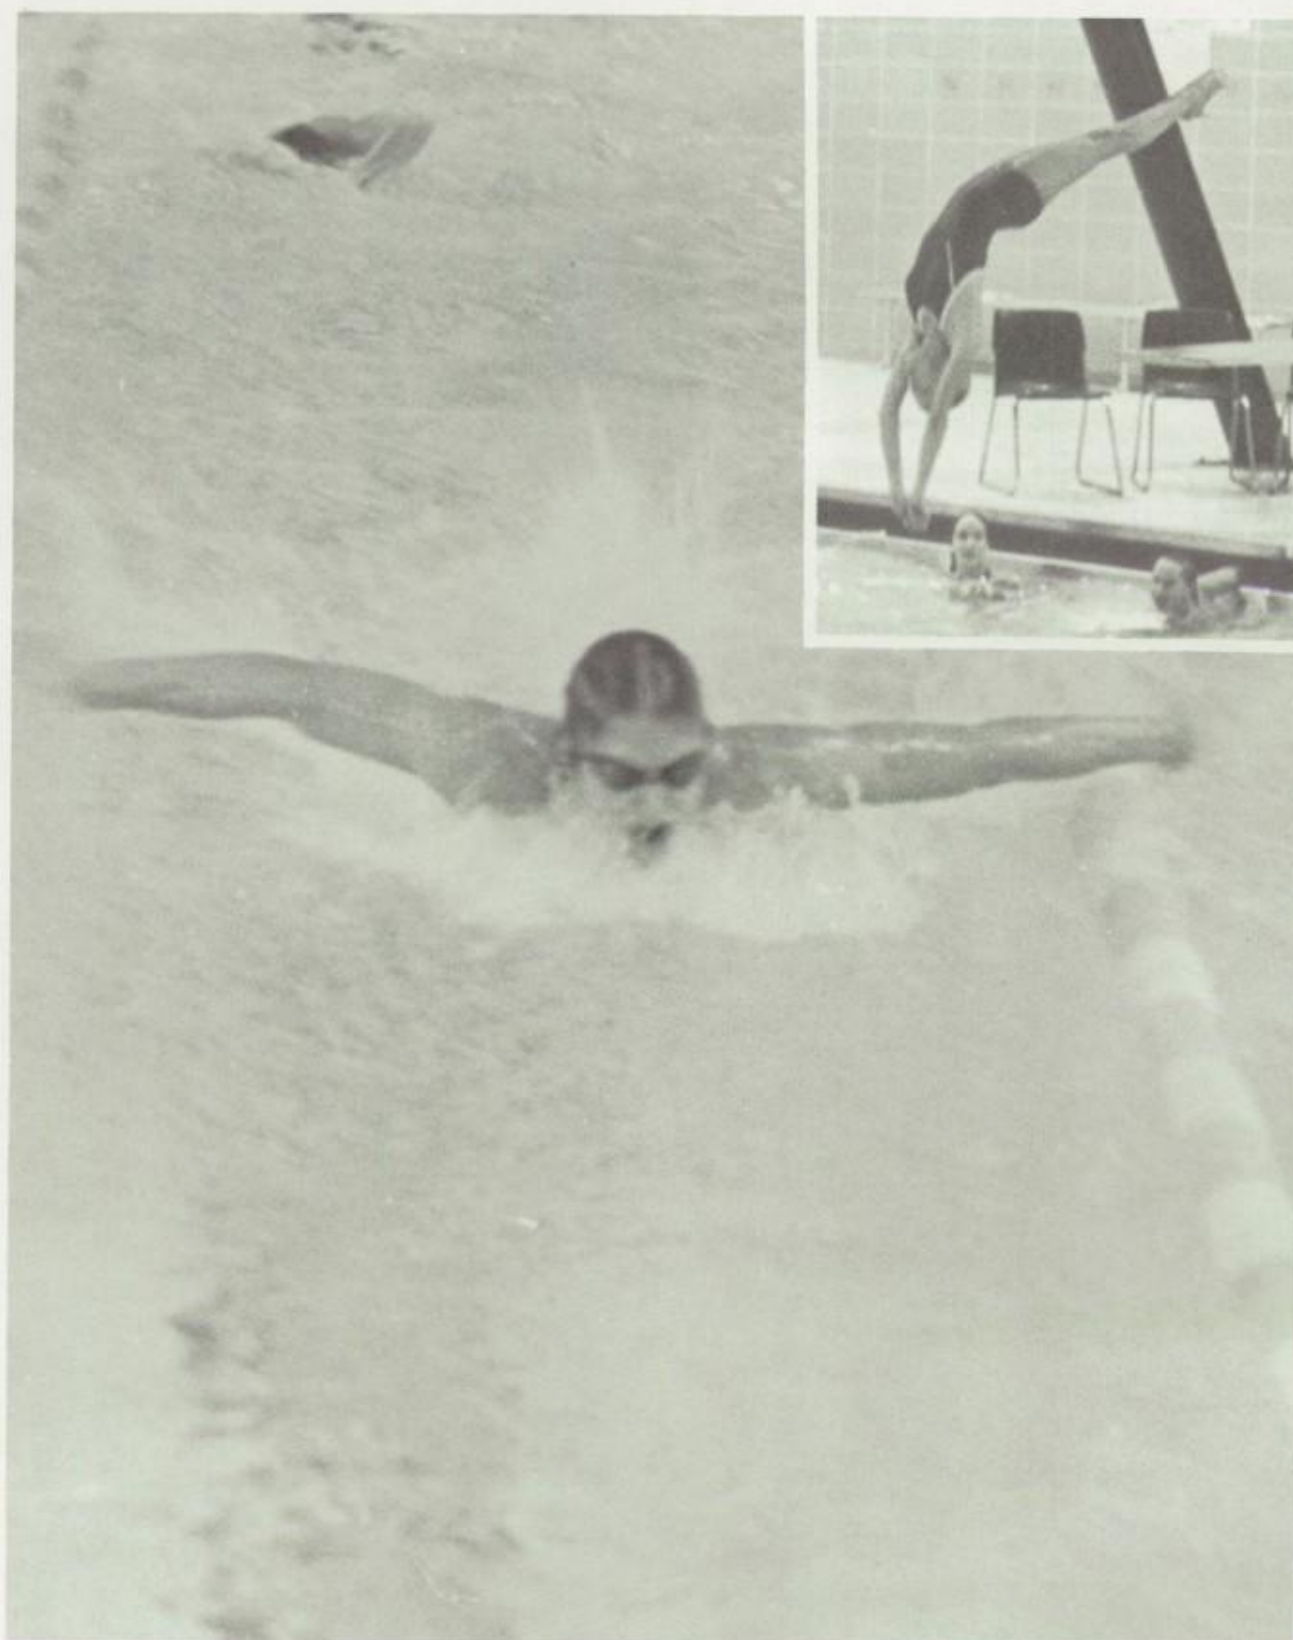

Every morning the sponges practiced at the ungodly hour of 6 a.m. They also trained rigorously in the pool and the weight room after school until 6 p.m.

Supplied by some fountain of energy, our swimmers worked and played together in this competitive sport, not as individuals, but as a team.

Note: Team pictures were scheduled to be taken during the week of our January blizzard, and therefore had to be postponed. Unfortunately, we were unable to reschedule this picture to the convenience of the coach. We regret that there will be no varsity boy's basketball picture in the yearbook.

"We had a balanced team with good shooters," remarked Coach Theissen when asked to comment on the season. Indeed they did as shown by their accomplishments during the season. The Dogs began the season rated as high as number two in early polls, and even though they failed to maintain those ratings it was not because the team was lacking the talent, it was just that the competition in the new conference was extremely intense with the title not being decided until the last game of the season. In no way could the season have been labeled disappointing.

During the game it is often times harder to be a coach than a player as shown by the expression on Coach Denny Theissen's face.

Jump balls can make the difference in a game which is why Freshman Mark Walker gives it his all.

Before you get to be a Bettendorf Varsity Bulldog under head coach Theissen, you have to do a stint as a Bullpup under the able coaching of Mr. Pacha, Mr. Freeman, and Mr. Willadson.

With three underclass teams, it's hard to summarize the season, but the coaches seem to agree that if nothing else, there's been a lot of learning going on this year. Practices were long and tiring, but gradually aching muscles turned into finely tuned machines.

The freshman season is relatively short, with their last game played on Feb. 2, while the sophomores controlled the courts until Feb. 23.

Despite the fact that games were played to sparsely populated bleachers, the Bullpups have demonstrated that Bettendorf will remain one of the state's powerhouses in boys' basketball.

Despite being guarded by three Assumption players, sophomore Cathy Noth manages to get off a jump shot.

High in the air, senior Pam Lehman passes the basketball to one her forwards before Assumption's Sara VanVooren can get back on defense.

Although junior Sue Block was a forward last year, she did a good as a post guard this season. Here she advances the ball to the forwards.

Dawn Crosby, a two year varsity starter, reaches for two points during one game of the sectional tournament.

For the girls b-ball players, this year was one to truly remember. It was definitely a year full of firsts for the program. 1978-79 was the first year the varsity team won more than 20 games in one season, the year both sophomore and varsity Mississippi 8 Conference trophies were displayed in the showcase, and the year that the girls were invited to and won their first two day tournament. 78-79 was also the year that the Phantom Pumpkin Pusher made his or her debut, the year that the varsity team broke the 100 point mark, and the year the girls finally ended a long losing streak against PV.

All of this impressive success, however, was not just handed to them at the beginning of the season it came from hours upon hours of hardwork, determination, and sweat combined with tons of talent. At one point during the season Coach Bruce

Rasmussen picked up a ball and said, "One of the neat things about this basketball is that it can give you so much more than just the pleasure of playing the game itself." And the girls did get much more out than just the pleasure of the game, they became close friends with 14 other kids in addition to meeting the scores of other girls on opposing teams. They gained memories and experiences that they will carry with them for the rest of their lives.

As of the district final game, the varsity had broken 14 school and individual records with several others in danger of being broken. they also had two velvet blue plaques which meant that they were both the Sectional and District champions. Yes, it was a good year, a great year as a matter of fact, and for those involved, one that will be remembered for a long time.

Seniors Toni Cowen and Pam Lehman, three year letter winners in basketball, clap for the other starters as each one is introduced before the start of the game.

Although these girls are only freshmen and sophomores, they have developed a winning attitude that is characteristic of the girls' basketball program at Bettendorf High School.

One key to their success this year was the hardwork and dedication they put in during practice. Running killer drills, dribbling around chairs and working on their passes may not be fun but these underclassmen have the determination it takes to get the final basket that wins the game.

Even though the sophomore and freshmen girls don't get many spectators at their games, they are a very important part of the Bettendorf basketball program, because in a few years these basketball players will make up the varsity team.

Joann Hammann drives past the Davenport West guard for two points.

Because of the endless hours spent working on repetitious drills, many a basketball game is won or lost in practice, here freshman Beth Miller perfects her jump shot while being guarded by Elizabeth Brown.

Every gymnast knows that waiting to compete is just part of the job. Here the squad is shown doing just that during one of the seasons meets.

Top gymnast Cindy Barnard will graduate one year early, leaving behind her many impressive scores as well as performances.

Freak out

"Don't be so loosey-goosey up there. You people have got to learn to be tight." Anyone who has been in the gym after school would recognize this as Mrs. Smith's favorite quote. It ranks second only to "Well, the meet's been snowed out again. Go home."

The blizzards of '79 played havoc with the gymnastic's schedules as they did with everything else. The Muscatine Invitational was held but the BHS gymnastics team never made it. Several meets were cancelled or rescheduled, resulting in holding six high school meets within eleven days.

Of the meets that were held, the team ended with a 5-5 record, including a 0.25 point win over Assumption, and a heartbreaking 0.12 loss to Clinton.

The '78-'79 season will be memorable for many reasons. Assistant Coach Mrs. Miller's being pregnant, Mr. Thiessen's constant yelling across the floor, and the youngest team ever, five freshmen, five sophomores, and three juniors.

Tough, aggressive, and mean could describe a lot of things in life. In Bettendorf though it means just one thing, wrestling.

TOUGH was just what the varsity team was composed of. All year long the wrestlers constantly proved that fact over and over again. They fought tons and tons of snow, a number of minor and major injuries, and all of the other possible obstacles a sports team can be subjected to during a season.

AGGRESSIVE was just how the varsity team wrestled. They went out and did what they had done in past years, and won. It took a lot of sweat and determination but they gave it everything that they had, which was what it took to bring them a successful season.

MEAN is just how the varsity team looked. By mean it is not meant that the individual team members went about pushing people around, however what is meant is that the team had the reputation of being one of the toughest teams in the state.

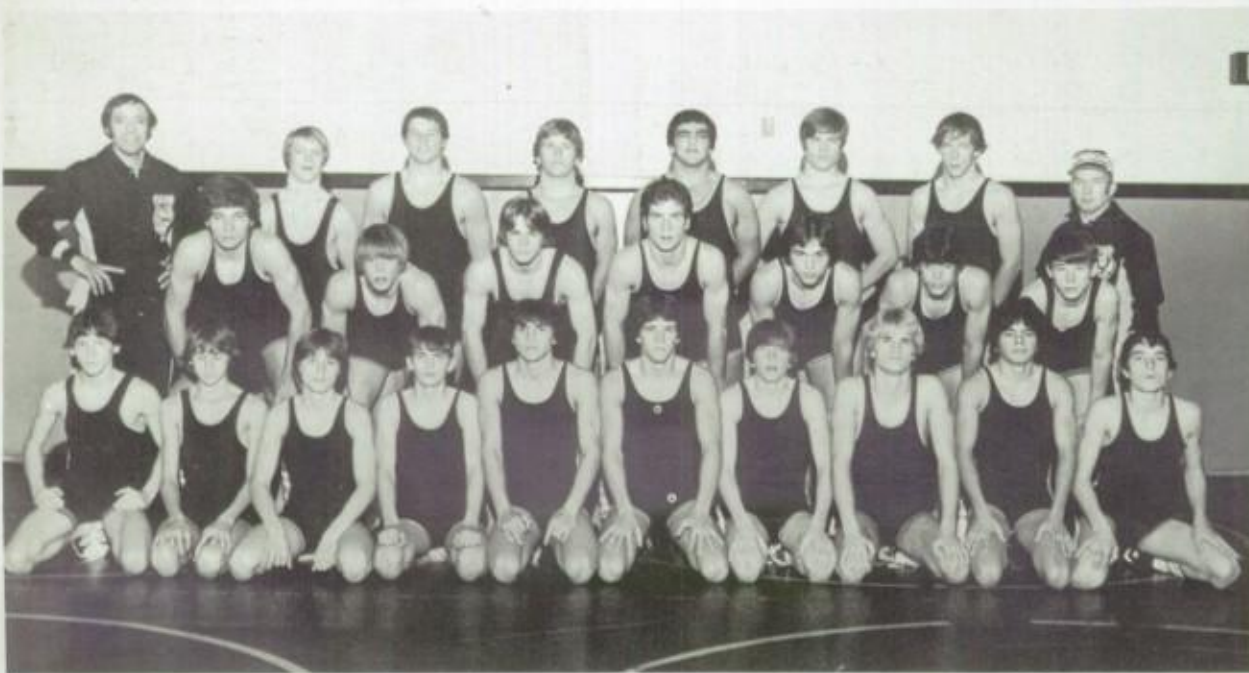

That was what the varsity wrestling squad was made of, everyone of them were the best. It was a great year, and a great team, and they have left Bettendorf, once again, on the top of the mats.

Winning is contagious

The Bettendorf wrestling team has been a good one through the years being tough competition in the Mississippi Valley Conference.

As each year progresses, so does the competition. With the pride of the team and the spirit, the Bulldogs keep up on top of things, all with the help of the coaching staff Paul Castro, JV, Dave Boynton, Sophomores, Merv Habenicht and Terry Paustian, Freshmen. They have kept the traditionally tough team going, proving that this is truly the "year of the dog".

Sis- boom- bah!!

The BHS cheerleaders (sometimes known as the (Bettendorf bumbles bees) have put in many hours supporting Bettendorf athletes and representing the Black and Gold at all the games, meets, etc. Fire up!, Go BULLDOGS, and You can do it, are common sounds to most Bettendorf fans.

The fall season was exciting with Homecoming activities and the Bettendorf-Central game. Pep auds and the usual "I forgot my pom-poms" are moments to be remembered.

The winter season was extra busy. "Oh, I was supposed to cheer?" and "I thought that was tomorrow" were often heard through the season.

All in all, the newly adopted cheerleading motto sums up the year.- "A cheerleader is only as good as the squad is as a whole."

Varsity cheerleaders scream with excitement as Bettendorf scores against the West Falcons.

The Books

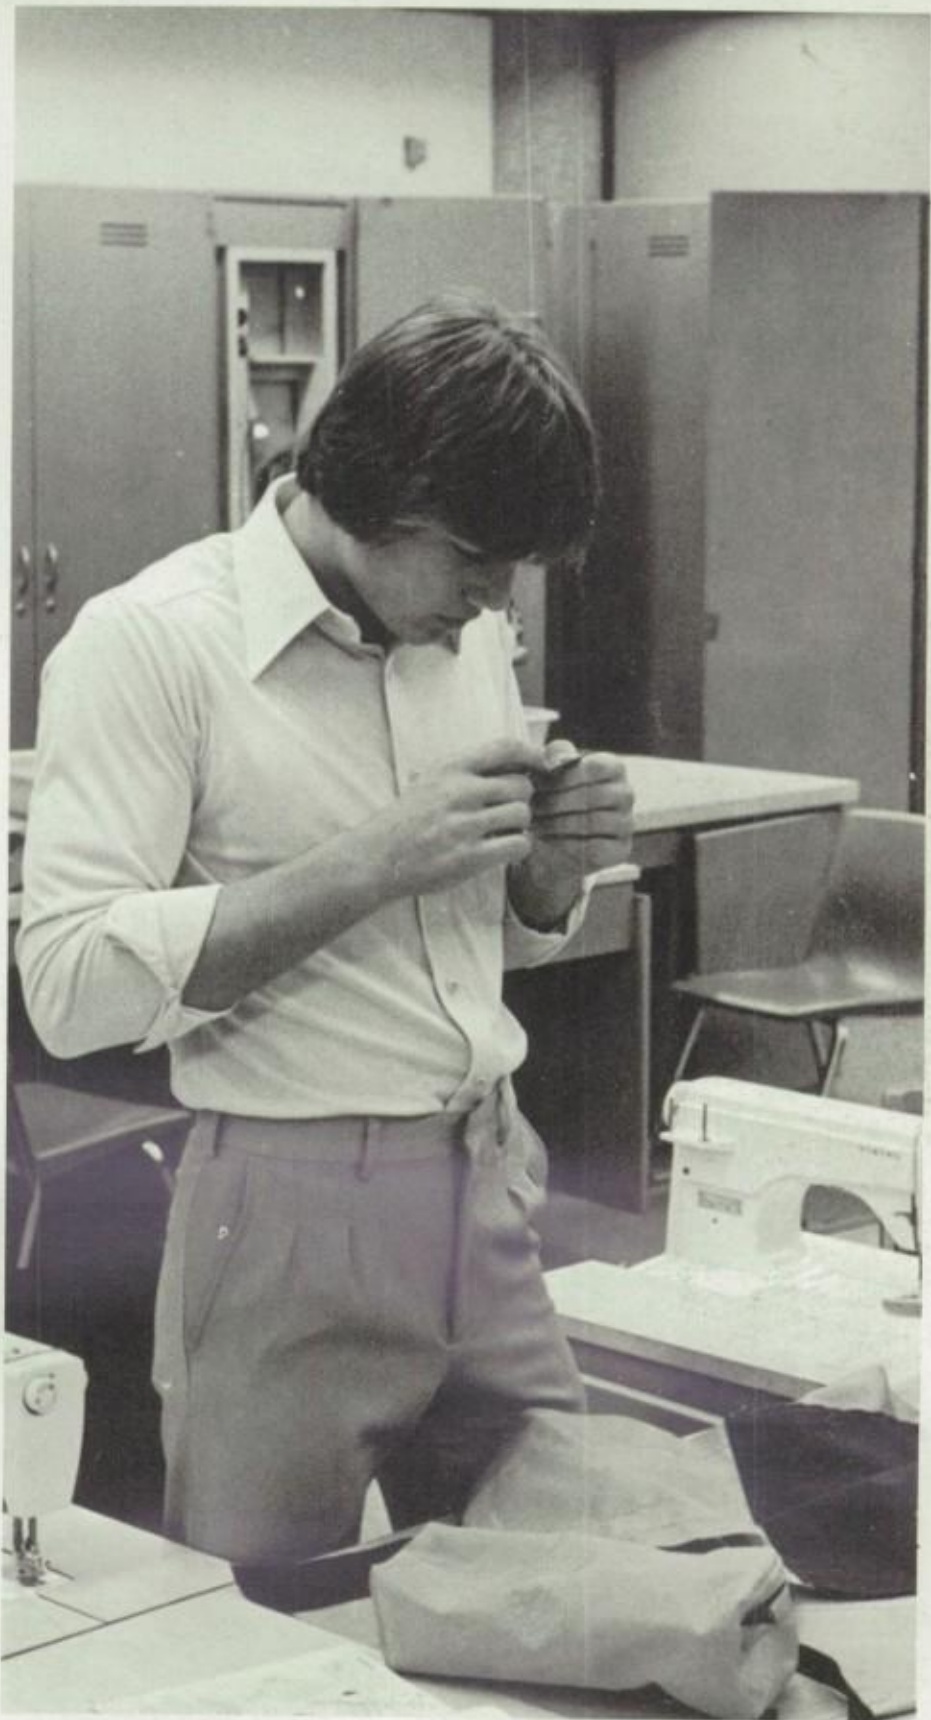

This is the scene most familiar in any high school - students sitting at a desk. Seniors Steve Schleusener and Ed Koufer muddle through a Psychology class together.

There are even laughs in accounting class. Mr. Hayes's sixth hour class chuckles at Mike Tatoian.

School is more than mental effort. Here a student uses manual dexterity along with a light table and exacto knife to cut a line.

The hardest part of sewing is threading the stupid needle! Senior Norm Berglund makes a valiant effort in Independent Living.

The men upstairs

The Bettendorf Board of Education. Here, they are shown in what could have been any meeting during the year. The board met every first and third Mondays of each month.

Board members, Tony Castro and Robert Bahrenberg, along with Asst. Superintendents, Dr. Vic Ross and Dr. Ray Oles, listen with intent at one of the meetings.

Being president of the board encompasses more than just presiding over the board meetings, as is understood by President Steven Hook.

Board Secretary; Jan Henning, President; Steve Hook, Superintendent; Dr. Doyle Andersen, and members Dave Nelson, and Dr. Richard Munster listen during a board meeting.

Board members John Bates and Bill Ashby concentrate on what is being said at one of the meetings of the board.

Not many people realize just how much work the administration puts in each day, the hours spent doing paperwork, all the time spent in meetings, and all the time spent planning how things will be done. To most their offices are in a part of the school that is off limits, foreign territory. But it couldn't work without them, it just couldn't be done without all their knowledge and time. So, next time you're in the school at 6:00am. or pm. take a walk past the offices upstairs, they usually will be there working for us all.

Athletic director, Wendell Hill leads a very busy life taking care of the entire athletic program as shown by stacks of paperwork.

Vice-principal, Mr. Wm. Jensen is shown taking care of some paperwork in his office.

Vice-principal Mr. John Kelly is caught by the photographer while working in his office.

Mr. Jack Price took over the reins in January as the new Student Council advisor as well as Director of Activities.

The school this year lost someone they cared for very much as Mr. Jeff Blackwell, Director of Activities, left to become Vice-principal at PV in January.

Principal Dr. Robert Stevens (known by "Bear" to some) is known for his fair decisions and dedication which makes him very popular with the student body.

Mrs. Betty Thies, spends many hours helping out in the practical arts area, and working with the typing classes.

The Resource Clerks: L. Fradel, Foreign Lang.; A. Dwyer, Lang. Arts; M.F. Barnett, Prac. Arts; D. Schreck, Soc. Stu.; P. MacKusick, Math; D. Stansberry, Science.

Office Secretaries: P. Spain, Activities; J. Eppard, Attendance; B. Yegge, Office; G. Krumbholz, Attendance; E. Bribiesco, Office; A. Kindle, Office.

The guidance secretaries Virginia Duffy, and Pat Tharp are often times the busiest people in the entire school having to direct traffic through guidance in addition to their regular duties.

The Library Staff: D. Ryan, E. Larson, C. Jacobs, and R. Meyer.

A little extra help

The health Service staff, they spend many hours keeping records and taking care of any health problems that come up during the day.

Without too much thought, it's rather obvious that in order for a school to function it needs teachers and administrators. But what many don't realize is that it takes others, it takes a lot of very special people.

Just think of all the cooks that arrive in the early morning hours, before most of us are even out of bed, to prepare a nutritious breakfast and lunch. Then after all that they clean up and serve snacks all afternoon.

Then one can't leave out the nurses, those ladies to whom you tell "I don't feel well enough to dress for gym today," or give the line, "Can I go home I don't feel well." They are always there to listen to whatever you want to say.

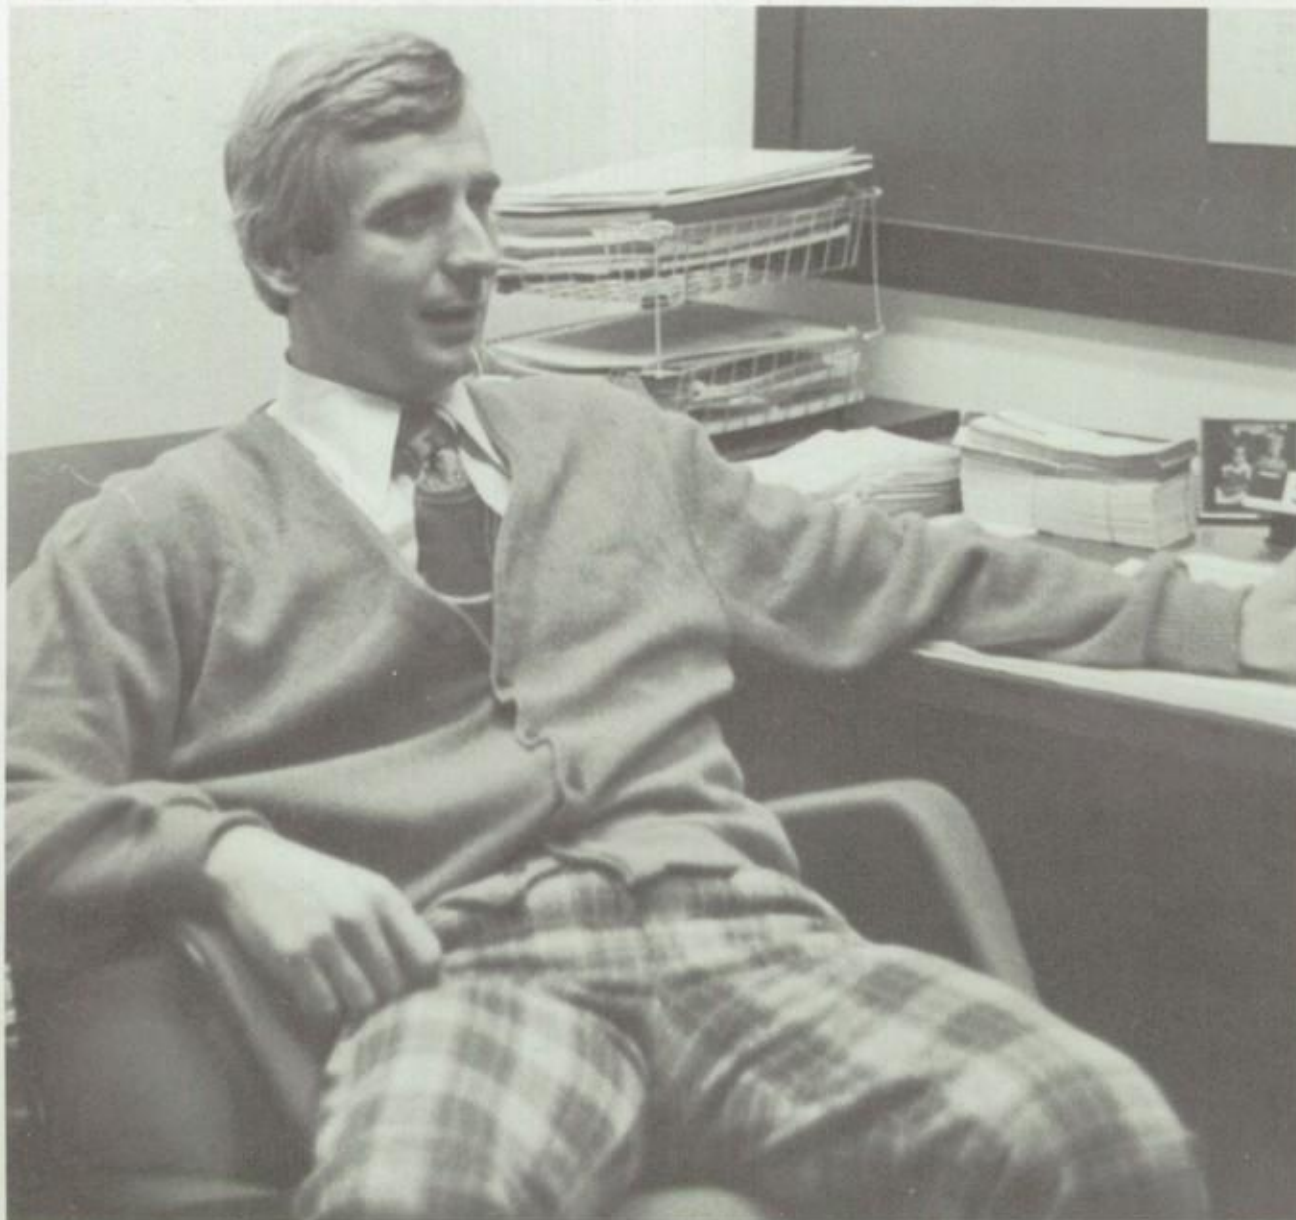

Of course who can forget the attendance secretary. She is the one that calls your home when you are at school and tells your mom that you aren't, only to find out later that the teacher accidentally marked you absent.

Now we come to Rosie and Dan, the loveable librarians. Sure everyone teases them and tries to see how many times they can get kicked off the library, but think about it, what would we do without them, school would just not be the same.

Then there are the secretaries, it just wouldn't work without them. They are the unseen force behind us all. Everytime we turn around we find that they did something we totally forgot about doing and that they took care of all the little details.

Last but most asurdly not least of all is those devoted men and women who wash blackboards, carry out the trash, and keep the building in tip top shape. They do all that often times unnoticed and without as much as a thank-you. Well thanks, thanks, to you all. You are very special people and we want you to know that!!!!!!

Guidance wants to see you now!

Mr. Steve Beckman relaxes while talking to a student. Many hours each week are spent by the counselors doing just that.

Mrs. Marie Peck is caught by the staff photographer while trying to wade through scads of paperwork.

"I want to add Business Machines 5th period; Can I drop Accounting?; I'm failing Mr. Burr's World Concepts course and I need help!" These are just a few of the requests the counselors receive during the school year. They are always making some sort of schedule change for a student. The counselors try to do their best to help the students with any of their problems whether they deal with problems in school or out.

They also assist the seniors with their graduation plans. They help choose colleges that would suit the student and also help them decide what some of the courses are that they might want to take that would help them in their careers.

Mr. Robert Tudeen takes a break from the heavy workload to pose for a picture.

Mrs. Cynthia Lucasik does some of the typical guidance paper work that comes along with the job while taking a moment to pose for a picture.

Filling out forms is just one of the jobs every counselor must do, as shown by Mrs. Ramona Nelson.

Mrs. Gillespie and her husband, Don, have an old house that they have spent many hours remodeling - their current project - the bathroom.

Students enjoyed Rosie's gentle sense of humor - unless of course you were guilty of breaking library rules.

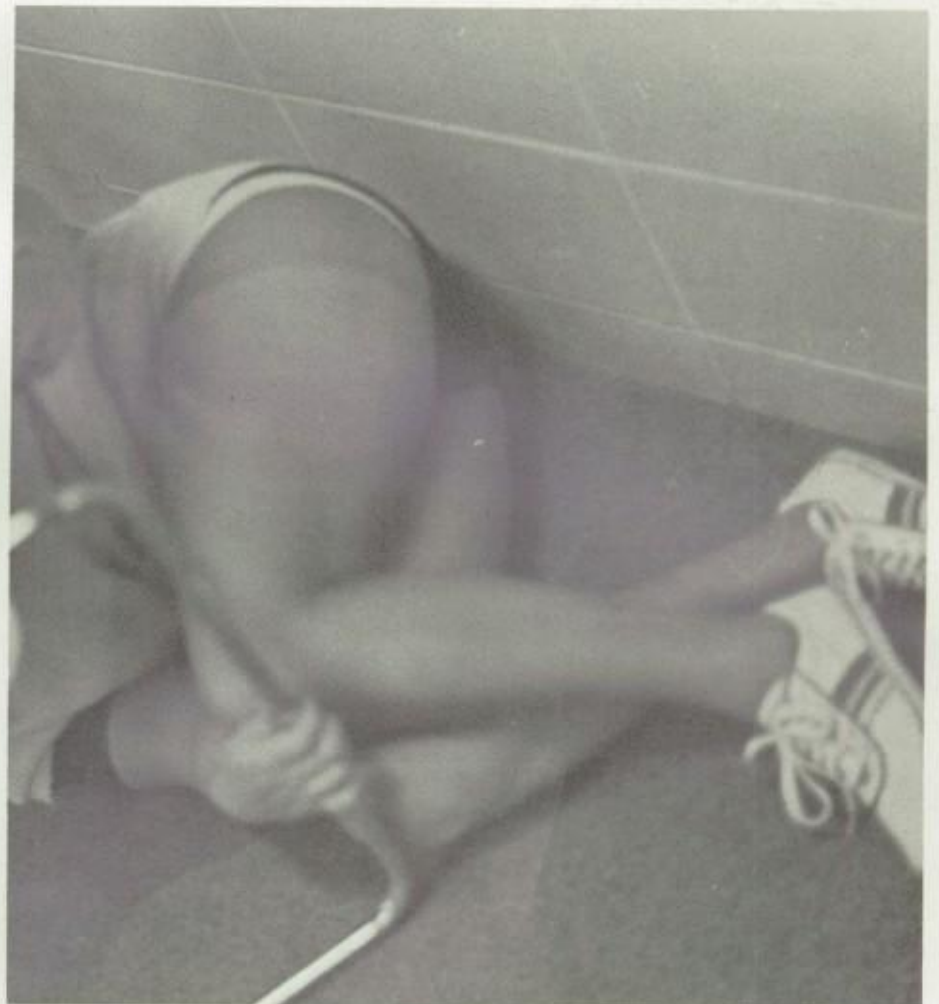

Rosie Meyer's house becomes a Christmas fantasy during the holiday season.

You might think English teachers see enough of books, but Mr. Welsh enjoys reading in his spare time.

Physical fitness was the word! Many teachers spend spare time exercising.

“Up a road slowly”

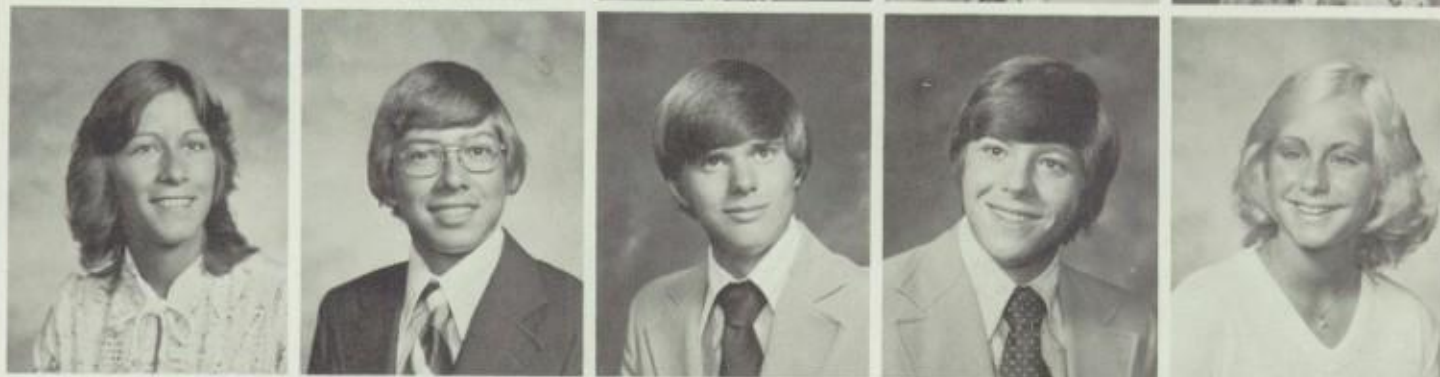

Life's sometimes a bummer,
if you know what I mean,
being a freshman isn't the easiest thing.
Being flushed down a toilet, believe me it's done,
but when you're all wet it isn't that fun.
It means signing up last, the lowest in school,
your gym shorts stolen and being thrown in the pool.

Life's sometimes a bummer,
if you know what I mean,
being a sophomore isn't the easiest thing.
The grades go downhill and just seem to drop,
your face breaks out from chocolate and pop.
You spend your short summer in Driver's Ed, wishing and wishing you were still home in bed.

Life's sometime's a bummer,
if you know what I mean,
being a junior isn't the easiest thing.
Close to the top, ITEDS are still here,
but not old enough quite for vodka and beer.
You pump gas, do dishes, to pay for your date.
Then break up on Monday because you were late.
Life's sometimes a bummer,
if you know what I mean.

being a senior isn't the easiest thing.
You're on the top, and example to see,
but nothing's exactly as you planned it to be.
You take all those tests, your college you choose, you throw out your gym shoes, all worn and used.
This year's your last, it too almost past,
the best year's you've seen.
Life's sometimes a bummer, if you know what I mean.

Just the same old pain

Brrinngg! Oh brrr! My feet are like ice. I pull up my covers over my head to stay warm. Brrinngg! Oh! I don't want to get up. brrinngg! I get up, shut off the alarm clock. Five more minutes! Get up or you'll be late, I hear my dad yelling! I slowly pull the covers off, I put my feet on the floor, with my eyes still closed I stand up. My room is like a deep freeze! I walk to the bathroom turn on the water and wait for it to get warm, I wash my face, brush the fuzz off my teeth. Eyes are still blurry but I'm able to make out a grotesque face in the mirror looking at me. I brush harder until my teeth feel like they'll rattle out of my head. I walk back to my room trying to decide what to wear, finally warmth begins to come back into my body. With a last longing look at my nice, snuggly, warm bed I turn to the closet, shirt, jeans, V-neck, what'll it be. A button missing off my favorite outfit, Dang! Another decision! Finally, dressed in a half way decent outfit, I head to the kitchen for breakfast. Dad heads me back to my bedroom-pants too tight, blouse too low. Not decent to him. Another change! Boy, I'm going to be late! My sister ate the last of the Froot Loops, I'll have to settle for Cap'n Crunch instead, Yuck! The horn honks! With the last gulp of seedy orange juice I grab my books and lunch and head out the door! Another day has begun!

Headaches

Accidents happen, nothing goes right, we've all had those days like Wednesday night.

The juniors were not without their share, when their doghouse was hit and they weren't even there.

A sole single senior patched it up quick and all that showed was a tiny little nick. But no sir indeed, the problems weren't done, yes there was still one to come. Two seniors boys were playing catch with a ball when the float got hit and the head took a fall. But it to was fixed and looked kinda nice, considering too, that it was picked on twice.

The seniors were not without troubles too, but it's only human and all of us do. While everyone stood to watch and to wait, that senior float took it's time and was 45 minutes late.

Cheating 101

The chin bone is connected to the knee bone and the knee bone is connected to the thigh bone and so on. That song sure sounds familiar doesn't it. A little like biology, yep, that class, yeh, the one that gives you a permanent frown on your face and wrinkles in your brow. The class where you learn about genes, nutrition and the fuzzy brown stuff that grows in your little glass dish. What the teacher doesn't know is the self-taught course which includes techniques of cheating. Such antics include scratching crib notes on gas handles, putting crib notes under your skirt, and writing notes on your arm using your sleeve to cover-up. Not only in biology but other classes also, many more modern techniques are developed each year with the progress of students.

Three flights of stairs can be the pits. Jr. Eugene Elliot troops down the steps to the language arts area.

Those second day of school blues

I walked into the Bettendorf High School Gym full of anticipation, I was going to sign up for my first unit of gym class.

Mr. Nolting read off the courses, the excitement built in my soul. I was going to join the ranks of students who had won the Goveners award for fitness last year.

I sat quietly for a long time. Freshman were to be the last to sign up, but I could wait. I'd been waiting for 14 years. A few more moments couldn't hurt.

The exciting moment came, I was filled with anticipation. My heart roared, and my soul caught fire, he had said it. He had said FRESHMEN.

I stood up with my class and I began my journey across the floor.. Then I heard it. My pride sank to the ground, my soul lost its fire, B-O-O-O-O-O-O-O-O-O-O-O-O-O

Opening her locker was always difficult for Chary

"I wanted to be on my own and learn about the United States.

Chary Borja: 19 years old, she has already graduated from her school in Ecuador. While she is here, she is staying with Mary McNaney, a senior at BHS. Already looking ahead to when she returns, she has advanced her career plans this year by taking the interior decorating class at school. She thinks that this will help her in becoming an architect, which is one of her future plans.

At school, Chary was involved in the first year clubs, Asia and Spirit Unlimited. Chary really likes the atmosphere and spirit of Bettendorf.

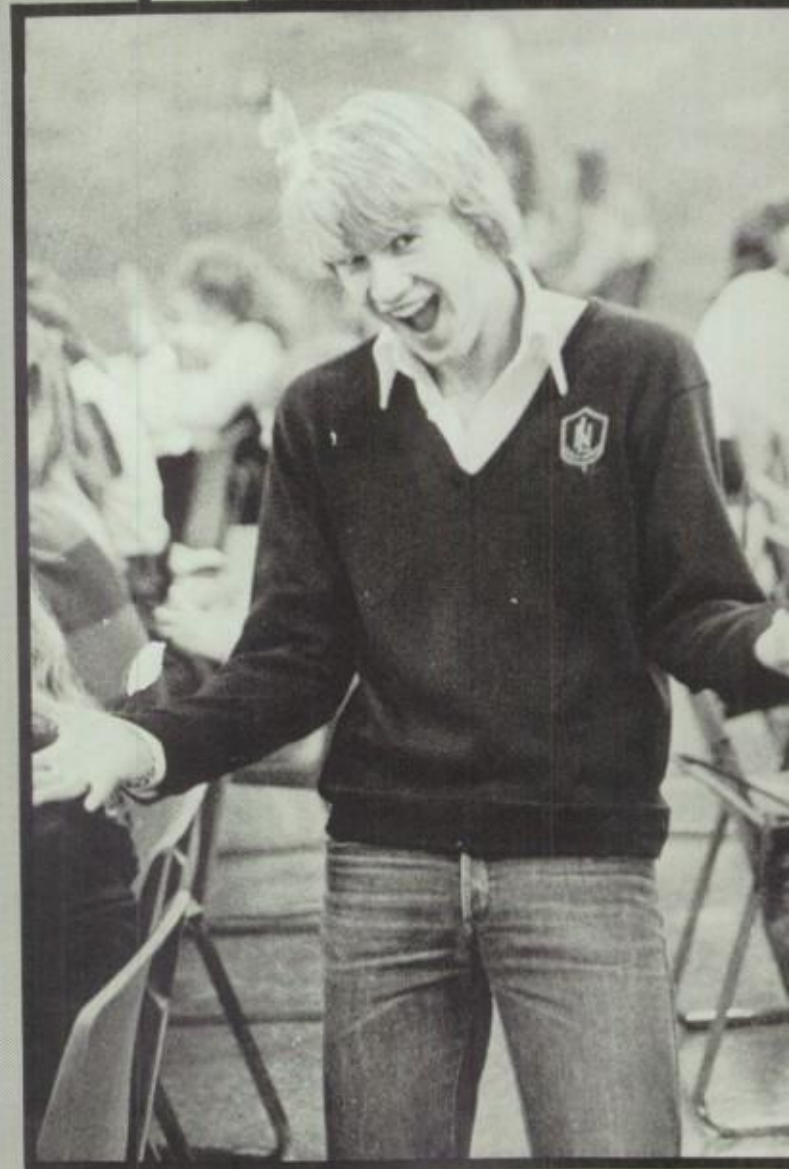

While she was here, she learned and saw many new things. Winter was especially exciting for her, because she has never seen snow before. In her hometown, Quito, the weather is spring-like all year round.

Walk together -

"I came to see what the real United States is like and to develop my personality."

Tom Olsson: the wild and crazy guy' from the Scandinavian country, Sweden. He is 18 years old and a senior this year. He is spending his year away from home with the Schneider family.

Tom really likes the people and the school here and had a great year. He was involved in a great many activities, including cross country and a role in one of the winter plays. Of course, coming from Sweden, he enjoys outdoor sports and being interested in skiing he joined the Ski Club. However his favorite activity is music, and Bettendorf's music program provided him with an excellent opportunity to fulfill his hobby. Tom played violin in the orchestra and tried out for All-state. He was a member of Tri-M too.

Ulla samples a school lunch.

"I came to learn English better and have a fun year."

Ulla Tuxen: She's better known as Ooh-la-la, which was her nickname on her civic center basketball team. A 17-year old senior this year, she stayed with senior Marcia Roth. Ulla is from Denmark, from where she has already graduated.

Although she isn't very active in organized activities, her social life is very full.

-Talk together

"I wanted to see the world from a different view and have a fun time."

Andrea Zmugg: Bettendorf's exchange student from Austria is a 16-year old senior who stayed with junior Lori Gronewold. Andrea found life at BHS busy with all the co-curricular activities.

Skiing is one of her favorite sports so she joined the Ski Club. Not only did she work for Spirit Unlimited and Beacon Staff, but she was also active on A Cappella Choir, French Club and German Club. Andrea found BHS to be different from her school in Austria, in that she could choose her subjects here, and came in contact with a lot of people every day.

The need to feed

Popcorn, M and M's, candy bars, and gum. Bettendorf High School often looks like a supermarket with all the clubs and organizations selling candy and the like.

"Diets are impossible!" said one girl ready to give up her figure. "How do they expect us to lose weight when there are M and M's and Slowpokes staring us in the face everyday!"

The reason for this sudden need to feed the starving student body is due to the fact that these clubs and organizations plan to go on educational field trips, and without money they are forced to stay home. About the only place to get this money, or the easiest anyway, is from the other students.

What else can be sold to a bunch of high school kids that never eat because they would rather starve than take a chance on eating the cafeteria food?

One club, Close-up, is planning to go to Washington D.C. Since that trip will obviously cost a lot of money, they have been selling M and M's since school started. By now, the students would rather let the M and M's melt in the sun than in their mouths!

I put my old blue jeans on

'78-'79 was the year of chic jeans with flashy back pockets. Fashion designers, who before claimed jeans were not in style, just something to wear, obviously changed their minds as they added this basic attire to their collections. Vidal Sassoon, Calvin Klein, Gloria Vanderbilt, and Willie Smith were only a few of the famous names dropped on denim tails.

Discos obviously influenced the look of pants this year as straight legs became increasingly popular. The seams were close-cropped to give the sleekest look possible. The foxy "cigarette-leg" pants were a definite necessity to impress all of your friends.

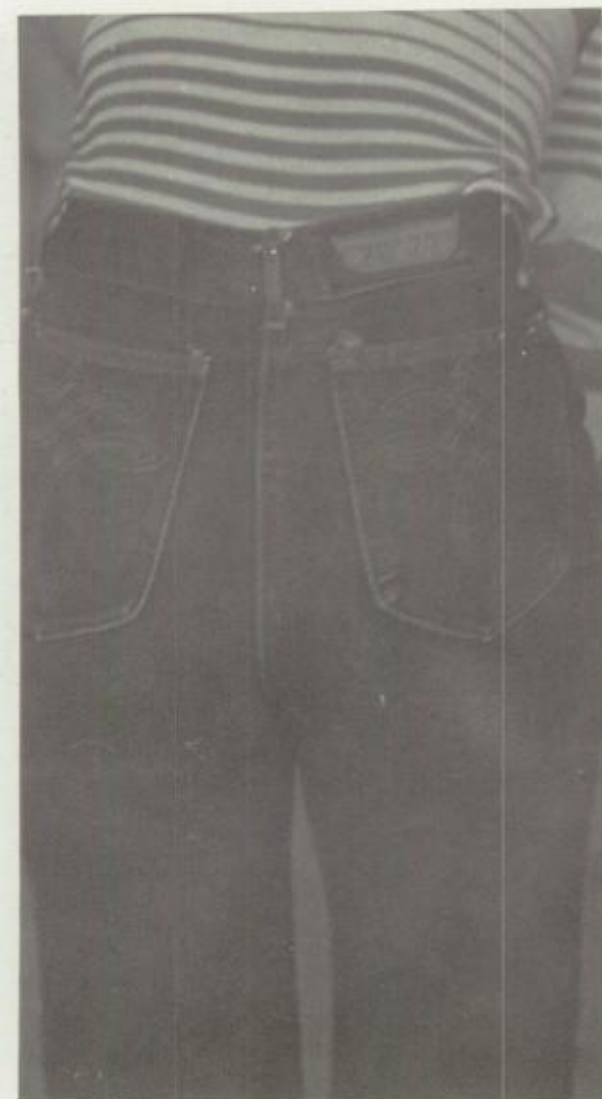

What made jeans classic this year was the material they were manufactured from. Not only were jeans available in denim, but also, leather, corduroy, and even clear plastic, to make sure everyone would notice you.

Most of the fashion jeans were manufactured in Paris (probably the Paris which exists right in the Quad-Cities), France. This is definitely the headquarters for high fashion — so it's no wonder the $25-$30 minimum price didn't phase the sale of the pants. As long as there was a tag claiming the jeans were from Paris, well that was all you needed to impress your peers. Among these imported pants were: Paris Now, Match, and Parissiene.

Even well-established companies brought out new lines in competition with all the others, Organically Grown, Plushbottoms, H.A.S.H., and Landlubbers to name a few. These brands added embroidery, elaborate stitching, and even silver piping to attract the opposite sex's eye. But, even some new name-brands were introduced. One of the most interesting was Charlie's Angels. This pair featured fancy stitching, along with a silhouette of the angels' emblem. It would probably be a bigger seller if the pants would turn the wearer into something as desired as Farrah.

Levis was the biggest selling brand of all, Although most pairs seen worn are the classic pair with the "fancy stitching on the back pocket," Levis also came out with some designer jeans. As usual, this brand was made noticeable by the red or orange tag on the back right pocket which proudly states Levis in bold black letters. The $15 spent for Levis is worth it just to receive that piece of status material.

Levi's had a few major factors which made them more desirable to own than the other denims — their price was one of them. Since last year the price of Levi's has dropped considerably, and they have been just as popular as always. Of course, the famous name of Levi, Strauss & Co. didn't hurt business, either. Everyone knows of the famous San Francisco miner who developed one of the major symbols of America.

Guys weren't excluded from fashion, as Britannia, Lee, Osh-Kosh, Sedgefield, and Levi's made sure girls' eyes would be attracted to the wearer. Although guy's jeans were not as elaborate as the girls', the tag gave their pants personality — not just another pair of jeans.

Even if you didn't have a pair of high-fashion Paris-designed jeans, you weren't excluded, however — All you needed was a pair of denims which was comfortable. Everyone owned a pair which fit these specifications.

Jeans can be worn almost anywhere, and at almost any occasion. When your best friend calls up, and asks, "What are you wearing tonight?" you almost always answer "jeans." They are what you wear when you're going to a party, driving around, or even when you are finally going out with the person you've been waiting to go out with for weeks.

Nothing makes you feel quite as comfortable as your favorite pair of jeans. When you wake up, and it looks like you won't make it through the day because you stayed up too late last night, when you're in a rotten mood and mad at the world, or when it's the day of the big algebra test, and you need some extra good luck, but you don't feel like carrying a rabbit's foot — No matter what the cause of emotional turmoil, when you pull your favorite pair of jeans on, everything seems to come together, and you don't feel any worry. Too bad parents don't understand this feeling when you've put your pants on for this reason and they tell you to change, because they are embarrassed to be seen with a slob. —

Alana Moss

Freshmen begin the big four

Staring down at the little laminated, blue card with the words Bettendorf High School boldly inscribed off to the side of your mug shot sends a shiver down the spine of all Freshmen. It means you've made it! You are now one of those elite people who are looked up upon by all elementary and junior high kids, you are now able to wear one of those black and gold jackets you've longed to wear for years, and even more important it means that you are no longer a child.

You now have four years to go, four years till graduation, and the pleasant thought somewhat scares you. You begin to think ahead, trying to guess the Homecoming court four years from now, wondering who the athletes will be, who will end up student body president, who will drop out, who's GPA will be 4.0 and in the back of your mind you try to picture what you'll be like four years from now.

You realize, as you place the little card away, that you can make the time everything and anything imaginable and that it will be a long four years.

Hey, Turkey, what's the deal?

We live in a world where one could "get burned" without putting a hand in a fire and "being cool" doesn't necessarily mean you want a coat. In short, we live in a world of slang words. Slang words are those which can't be used in Scrabble. They're a short cut used to reduce effort. They can be taken many ways and are dangerous as well as confusing. But what would we do without them!

Now, some slang words (heard in most locker rooms) never go out of date. They are known as "swear words" or "dirty words". Everyone past a certain age knows them (In writing they look like this: as! + *$!).

When (besides the last time you were listening to the Stones) have you heard someone say, "Hey! That's a gas!" This is what we call out-of-date slang. Slang in reality is one continual "fad", and it changes often. When slang goes out-of-date, it attributes to the "generation gap". For instance, have you ever yelled, "Hey I gotta book, man!" and a voice yells back, "I am your mother!" and then she asks the title of your book?

B.H.S has two main classes of people designated under slang words, they are: 1. the jocks and 2. the greasers. Unbeknownst to few however, there are many greasers who could very well be jocks, and there are many jocks who could be greasers. Most of us fall somewhere outside both categories and it would be easier to say that there's a little of both buried deep down in all of us.

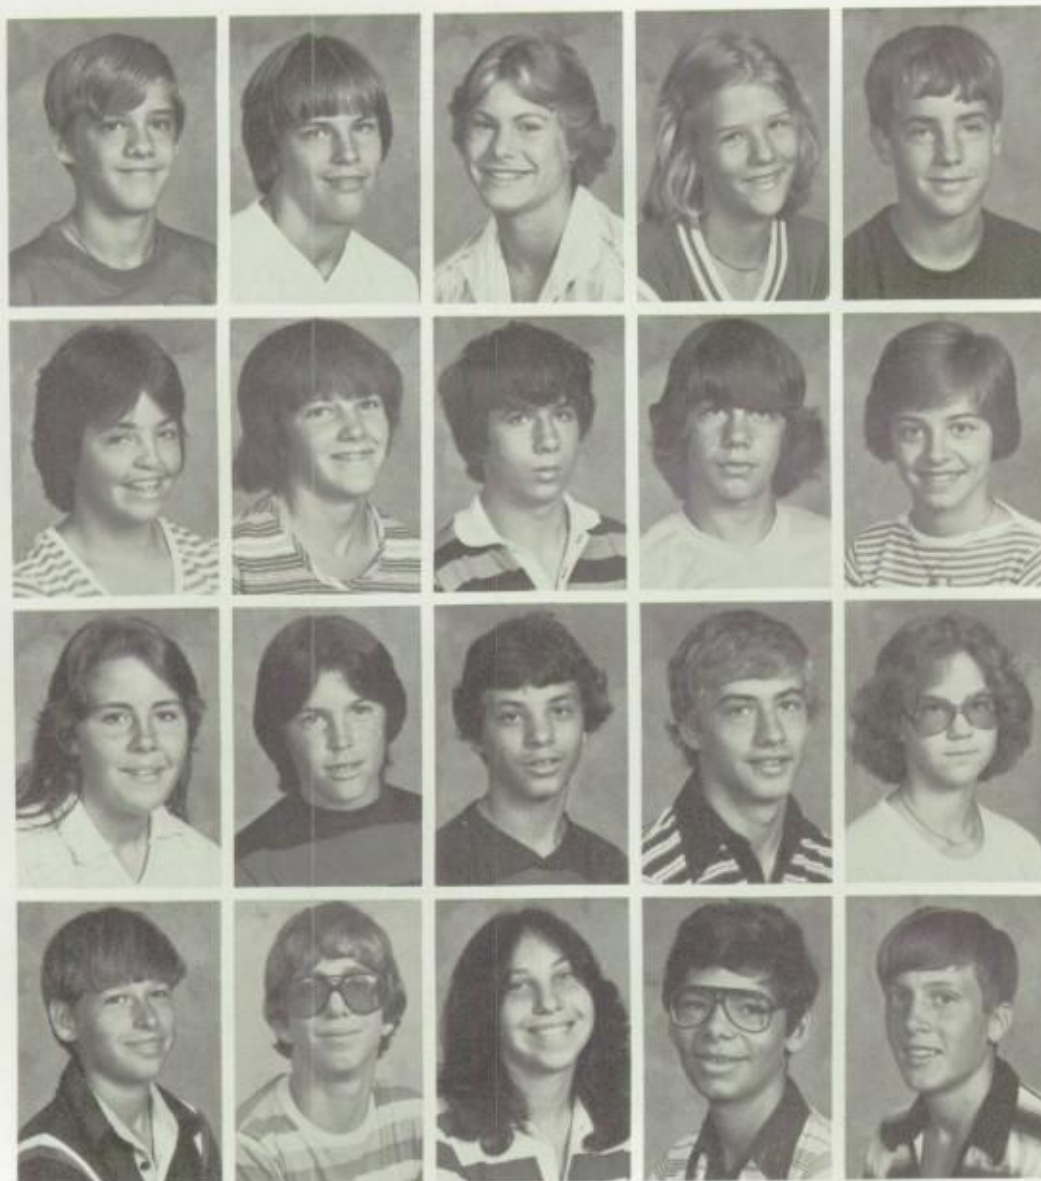

The time will come to pass again when a book becomes a book and "screwing something up" will require tools. So, remember these "decent" little words and your memories will be excellent.

Let's go t.p.'ing?

The ten o'clock edition says goodnight, Johnny Carson says sleep tight. The end of a warm and peaceful evening, or is it?

If you have ever been riding around some night with nothing to do you knew how we felt. The evening so far could have been described as boring. Then one of us came up with the idea of rolling someone's house. If you have ever rolled someone's house you know that it involves the placing of toilet paper on as many trees and bushes as you can without getting caught. The thrill of doing something that adults did not want you to do was to great. But where to start? First, we gathered our supplies. We went to restaurants, gas stations, and every 7-Eleven in Bettendorf. Loaded up with as much as we could carry, we headed for our victim's house. Older folks tend to call what we participated in as "vandalism". The cops even go as far as charging $25 dollars if you get caught. But to us, it is an art form, you might even call it "modern art". Not everyone can go and change your average American house into a cloud in about 15 minutes. That is a talent that not everyone is born with. We left the house with a satisfaction, but isn't that what every artist feels when they create a masterpiece?

The End

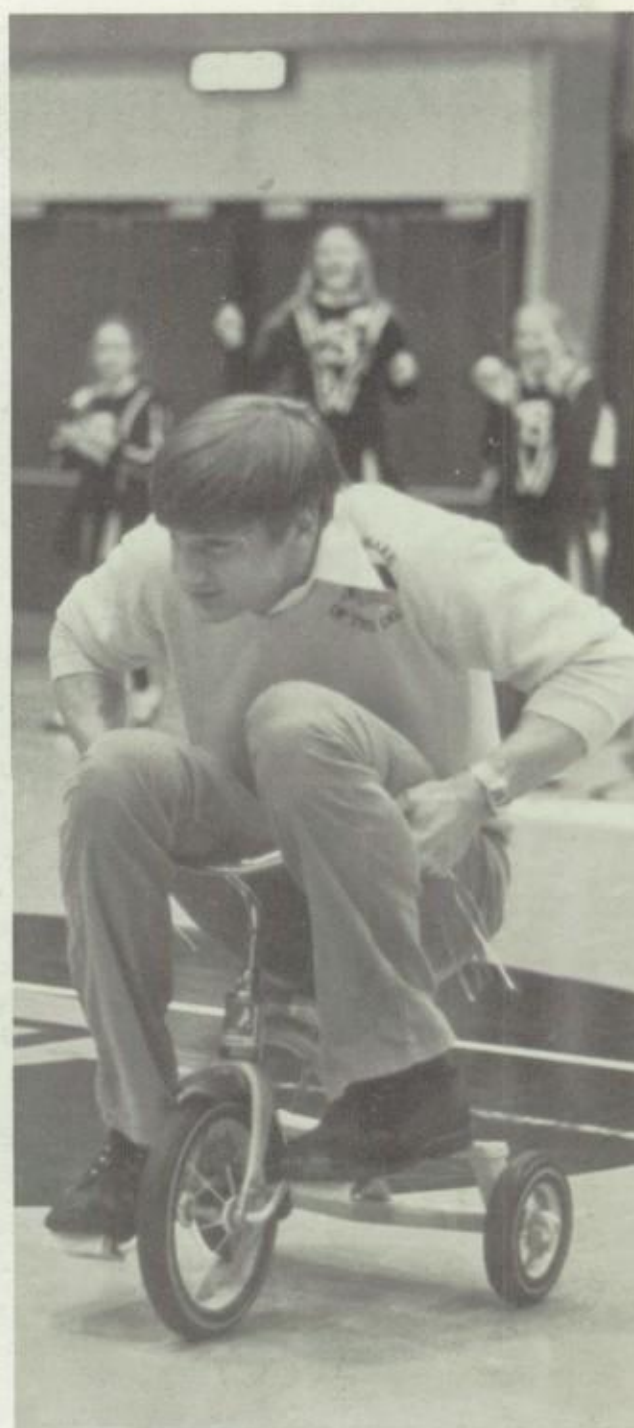

This might be the end of the book, but it's not quite the end of the year. Before this year is over, sophomores will magically turn into upper classmen, and seniors will start new lives as freshmen on remote college campuses or full-time employees or family raisers. The weather will go from cold and snow to bright, hot weather back to cold and snow - full circle.

During that circle game, students will stop from time to time to look back on this year at Bettendorf. They'll remember the girls' win over Pleasant Valley, the three winter plays, and the debut of the "Terrible Towels." They'll remember the five fires that were set in the locker bays, the King Tut Cropdusters, and the January 13th blizzard that first dumped 16 inches of snow on the Quad-Cities and then slowly accumulated to 30 inches total for the winter. It was the year we lost the embassy in Iran while we listened to the Bee Gee's sing "Night Fever" over and over and over again.

Whatever memories you take with you from this year and this book, you'll have to agree that 1979 was some year - a banner year - the end of a decade - "A Classic."

the Cropdusters perform at a winter pep aud. Bottom: Yearbook editor Linda Heidel gladly seals the last envelope to be sent in for the 1979 Beacon.

Captions clockwise: Even Ms. Metzner thinks things can get a little hairy on Monday. At one of the winter pep auds senior Mark Gordon joins in a tricycle race. Someone obviously didn't see the "handicapped parking only" sign but will get the message. Sue Keesey found that sometimes you see strange things in a public restroom. The Terrible Towels made their first appearance at the girls' sectional basketball game against Assumption.

Dedication

We would now like to take the time to thank all of you, who gave so much of your time and energy, in helping us to make this book possible. There is, also, one very unique individual we would like to dedicate this book to, who gave us so much and asked for so little. Her unrelenting smile and constant support helped pull us through the many, many long evenings. For those of you who know, Ms. Nina Metzner, know that this does not even begin to tell how very special she really is.
